MAGAZINE REVIEW - Marxism Today

MORE A POLITICAL REVIEW The Core Text Section: In a general way, this is the book Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels: Selected Works. It was published last year, as was the other part of the same project, Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels: Selected Works. Written in the 1830s, when the nature and methods of revolution were being discussed, the text justifies the use of force, violence and terrorism in order to achieve national goals. It would be helpful for every socialist to read, as it shows that the language of the time was in no way different from the language of today...

T.V. REVIEW - The Monocled Mutineer

The movie, entitled the Monocled Mutineer, is a docudrama based on the lives of Seamen during the Second World War in the South African navy, which was controlled by Apartheid. The story goes back to the last war, when the Seamen were sent to South Africa to fight against the British. The Seamen were told that they would be fighting for the British, but in reality they were fighting against the British. The movie is well made and gives a good account of the lives of the Seamen during the war. It is worth watching.

UNEMPLOYED GET ORGANISED

A new rag was bed of the May War. Concerning Trotsky's approach, the South African Press Association reported: "The situation is now worse than ever." The paper's editor, Mr. Brown, wrote: "We must now face the fact that the unemployed are no longer a problem, but a danger to the state."

Of course, there is no such thing as a "solution" to unemployment. The real problem is the capitalist system which causes mass unemployment in the first place. The unemployed are the tools of the capitalists to keep the workers in check.

NTF Director, Mr. John Smith, said: "We must continue to fight for the rights of the unemployed. We are not going to be intimidated by the bosses and their lackeys." The NTF has launched a new campaign to raise awareness about the plight of the unemployed.

WAS HARRY PHIBBING?

Harry Philby, the British official who led the Union of Democratic Youth (UDY), has been accused of a cover-up over the NTF strike. The UDY has been accused of not doing enough to stop the strike.

The UDY has denied the allegations and said that it is not responsible for the actions of its members. The federation has called for a public inquiry into the matter.

When the anarchists ran the buses

At least they ran on time

After reading the recent summary over the radio, I thought I would contribute a few more observations and comments to the growing debate about the government's response to the recent disturbances. The government's actions have been characterized by a mix of policymaking and implementation, with some positive developments and others that are concerning.

1. The government has taken some measures to prevent the spread of misinformation and to address the unrest. This includes working with social media companies to take down false information and working with local communities to address the root causes of the unrest.

2. The government has also taken steps to ensure the safety and security of law enforcement officers. This includes providing additional resources and training to officers and implementing new policies to protect officers from harm.

3. The government has also worked with local businesses to address the economic impact of the unrest. This includes providing financial assistance to businesses affected by the disturbances.

However, there are also some concerning developments that deserve attention.

1. The government's response to the unrest has been characterized by a heavy-handed approach, with many people feeling that their rights and freedoms are being threatened.

2. The government has also faced criticism for its handling of the unrest, with some calling for a more transparent and inclusive approach.

3. The government's response to the unrest has also faced backlash from some segments of the population, with some calling for a more radical approach to address the issues at hand.

In conclusion, the government's response to the recent disturbances has been mixed, with some positive developments and others that are concerning. It is important for the government to continue working with all stakeholders to address the root causes of the unrest and to ensure the safety and security of all citizens.
