Workers Dreadnought FOR GOING TO THE ROOT.

Vol. X. No. 39.

December 15, 1923.

WEEKLY.

Women Members of Parliament.

By Sylvia Pankhurst.

The return of eight women to Parliament marks an advance in public opinion. People have realised at last that women are persons with all the human attributes, not merely time of them and that women have an equal right with men to take part in making the social conditions under which they live.

This country has not been first in admitting momen to political equality with men; other countries preceded us in admittiting women to the legislatture, and we have not yet reached political equality in the franchise here, although the women of this country led the way in agitating for political and legal aduality.

It is interesting to observe that the legal barriers to women's participation in Parliament and its elections were not removed until the movement to abolish Parliament altogether had received the strong encouragement of witnessing the overthrow of Parliamentary Government in Russia and the setting up of Sovietts mentary Government in russia and the string up of Sovietts.

Those events in Russia evoked a response throughout the world not only amongst the minority who welcomed the idea of Soviet Communism, but also amongst the upholders of reaction. The latter were by no means oblivous to the grewth of Sovietism when they decided to popularise the old Parliamentary machine by giving to some women both votes and the right to be elected.

Election to Parliament is always much more a question of the strength of the party machine than of the qqualities of the candidate. An archangel would be defeated at the polls if he lacked a strong party backing. The majority of the electors vote without having heard or seen the candidate, who actually plays but a minor part in the election. Nevertheless, there was undoubtedly some prejudice to be overcome by the first women candidates, which acted as a makeweight against them, outbalancing what would otherwise have been the normal strength of the party behind them.

This election is the first in which the electors have voted for the successful women candidates to any appreciable extent on the merits of those candidates. Lady Astor, Mrs. Wintrngham, and Mrs. Phillipson entered Farliament merely as deputies of their husbands. This fact, from a democratic standpoint, was particularly objectionable in the case of Lord Astor since he was thus given a voice in ruling the people through both Houses of Parliament.

The women who entered Parliament n place of their husbands introduced no original palities, nor do we anticipate that their successors will do so. They were nominated candidates and have been elected to represent certain parties, and, in the main, their Parliamentary doings must follow that of their men colleagues in the party, otherwise the party will cast them out, as it would Most of these hardships, and the more serious of them, cannot be remedied within the system. Most of them, too, cannot even be mitigated without tampering with economic conditions; and there, at once, the general party policy will certainly obtrude itself, and the party woman will be called to heel by the whips like a party man if she stray too far from the party plan.

from the party plan.

Nevertheless, on questions of the special hardships of women and on questions specially related to sex the women members of the various parties may sometimes show themselves a trifle before or a trifle behind the general standard of their party by adhering in some respects to what has come to be generally regarded as the accepted programme of feminism. It is so regarded because it was adopted by certain women of the middle and upper classes, who were, for their day, more or less advanced though narrow and prejudiced in many respects, but who were of forceful energetite personality and built up a movement reflecting their conception of what should be the legal status of their sex and primarily of their class. That programme is, in many respects, retrograde and, in all respects, incompatible with Socialism.

One should not expect to find new policies

One should not expect to find new policies on any subject springing up from Parliament; the atmosphere there is arid, the life stultifyings to thought. At best—at very best—the Members of Parliament carry on the polities they adopted before they entered there, or catch up some vibrations or movements going on outside. Parliament is a decaying institution: it will pass away with the capitalist system: it will be replaced by the industrial soviets, when production, distribution and transport pass out of the hands of the capitalist, to become the foundative being administered by those who are engaged in it.

Women can no more put virtue into the decaying parliamentary institution than can men: it is past reform and must disappear.

Once the special legal disabilities of women in politics were in large measure, though not wholly, removed, it became inevitable that there should be little difference between the woman in politics and the man. between the woman in politics and the man in politics. That is as it should be.

The woman professional politician is neither more nor less desirable than the man professional politician: the less the world has of either the better it is for it.

The time to look forward to is that in which there will no longer be a body of persons whose business it is to rule or to listen to the speeches of the rulers and their puppets and to while away hour upon hour waiting to record their votes in division lobbies to the call of the party whips.

The soviets, under Communism, will meet for the administration of the services of the community, not to carry on the party war-fare which is inevitable to present-day and torn by the struggles of warring classes. To the women, as to men, the hope of the future lies not through Parliamentary Election Hopes and Fears.

"Perhaps one of the most romantic parties in the whole of London was that of the six men who dined in the Savoy restaurant and watched the results with a special interest. If the final result of the Election had shown a majority of not less than 150-for any one of the parties, they would have been at liberty to broach the bin of '63 port, which has been waiting for them since 1906. They had been barred from drinking it by a quaint pledge made on the final night of the General Election of that year, and they have dined at the Savoy at year, and they have dined at the Savoy at every General Election night since, hoping for the result which will relieve them from their pledge."—Savoy Hotel Press Circular.

ALL WORKERS MUTUAL AID UNION FOR MUTUAL SERVICE AND EDUCATION

We, will build the house of joy

One of the New Voters.

In August the unclouded sun, when there is no plon-isoried and it approaches be sourced by the source of the sourc In August the unclouded sun, when there is no a tent on the lawn in the shade, people drink claret-cup and use ice; ice has never been seen in the harvest-field. Indoors they say they are melting lying on a sofa in a darkened room, made dusky to keep out the heat. The fire falls straight from the sky on the heads of the harvesters—men, women, and children—and the white-hot light beats up again from the dry straw and the hard ground.

The tender flowers endure: the wide petal of the poppy, which withers between the fingers, lies afloat on the air as the lilies on water, afloat and open to the weight of the heat. The red pimpernel looks straight up at the sky from the early morning till its hour of closing in the afternoon. Pale blue speedwell does not fade; the pale blue stands the warmth equally with the scarlet. Far in the thick wheat the streaked convolvables winds up the stalk and is not smothe scarlet. Far in the thick wheat the streaked convolvulus winds up the stalk, and is not smothered for want of air though wrapped and creded with corn. Beautiful though they are, they are bloodless, not sensitive; we have given to them our feelings, they do not share our pain or pleasure. Heat has gone into the hollow stalks of the wheat and down the yellow tuber to the roots, drying them in the earth. Heat has dried the leaves upon the hedge, and they touch rough—dusty rough, as books touch that have been lying unused; the plants on the bank are drying up and turning white. Heat has gone down into the cracks of the ground; the part of the stile is so dry and powdery in the crevices that if a reaper chanced to drop a match on it there would seem risk of lire. The still atmosphere is laden with heat, and does not move in the corner of the field between the bushes.

Roger the reaper smoked out his tobacco; the children played round and watched for scraps of food; the women complained of the heat; the men said nothing. It is seldom that a labourer grumbles much at the weather, except as interfering with his work. Let the heat increase, so it would only keep fine. The fire in the sky meant money. Work went on again; Roger had now to go to a nother field to pitch—that is, help to load the wagon; as a young man, that was one of the jobs allotted to him. This was the reverse. Instead of stooping he had now to strain himself upright and lift sheaves over his heal. His stomach empty of everything but small ale did not like this any more than his back had liked the other; but those who work for bare food must not question their employ-

(Written by Richard Jefferies after the extension of the Parliamentary Franchise of 1885, it is still appropriate.)

II.

In August the unclouded sun, when there is no

He had been in the harvest-field fourt hours exposed to the intense heat, not eshielded by a pith helmet; he had worked day through with thew and sinew; he had to for food a little dry bread and a few onio for drink a little weak tea and a great deal small beer. The moon was now shining in sky, still bright with sunset colours. Fou hours of sun and labour and hard fare! tell him what to do. To go straight t plank-bed in the cow-house; to eat a little indry bread, borrow some cheese or greasy be nunch it alone, and sit musing till sleep ca he who had nothing to muse about. I thin would need a very clever man indeed to in something for him to do, some way for hir spend his evening. Real! To recommend a to read after fourteen hours burning sun is deed a mockery; darn his stockings would better. There really is nothing whatsoever the cleverest and most benevolent person suggest. Before any benevolent or well-mea suggestions could be effective the preceding cumstances must be changed-the hours be done? The world has been working with our engines, our electric light, our printi-press, still the coarse labour of the mine, to quarry, the field-has to be carried out by hum hands. While that is so, it is useless to reco-mend the weary reaper to read. For a man not a horse: the horse's day's work is over taken to his stable he is content, his mind go the open window; there is an odour of tobac a chin kof glasses and mugs. You can su the tobacco and see the ale; you cannot see indefinite power which holds men there— IMPORTANT!

back had liked the other; but those who work for bare food must not question their employment. Heavily the day drove on; there was more heer, and again more beer, because it was desired to clear some fields that evening. Monotonously pitching the sheaves, Roger laboured by wagon till the last had been loaded—till the moon was shining. His brazen forehead was unbound now; in spite of the beer the work and the perspiration had driven off the aching. He was weary but was weary but well. Nor hat he been dull during the way weary but well, Nor hat he been dull during the day; he had talked and joked—cumbrously in abourers fashion—with his fellows. His aches, his empty stomach, his labour, and the last had love on; there was not even though fave has send to coleck unsteadily walking to his shed, and save himself from stumbling. He blunder against the door, and the noise set the swallow on the beams twittering. He reached his been stead, and sat down and tried to unlace he held had not overcome the vitality of his spirit, is not self-supporting: the editing and managing is impaid.

There was life enough left for a little rough

BY LUDOVIC RODO CUT for the cover of a sixpenny magazine of advanced thought. Plays, Stories, Poems, Drawings and Cuts. Order from 152, Fleet Street.

All Matter for Publication - To THE EDITOR Business Communications — To The Manager.
WORKERS' DREADNOUGHT,
152, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.4. SUBSCRIPTIONS. Post free. One year (52 weeks)

Vol. X. No. 39. Saturday, Dec. 15th, 1923

Subscriptions can start from any week.

Our Diew.

THE ELECTION RESULT.

The increase in the Labour vote is pleasing to us, because we regard it as a sign that the popular opinion is on the move, and ere long will have left the Labour Party far behind. We cannot say that the vote recorded for the Labour Party were votes for Socialism, because the Labour Party did not advocate Socialism, but only some reforms. Yet we believe the denunciatio of the Labour Party by inight work some drastic and beneficial anges. Masses of people voted, not for paltry programmes put forward by the programmes the Capitalist Press, as a Socialist Party, actually generated enthusiasm for the Labour Partty, and made masses of people hope that changes. Masses of people voted, not for the paltry programmes put forward by the Labour candidates, but against the evils of Capitalism, and for the emancipation of the poor, though perhaps they did not clearly consider what form that emancipatio would take. The pity is that the whirlwind election propaganda was largely a propaganda of vote catching expediency, without any permanent calculational value. In our conjugary propagation means enough. educational value. In our opinion propaganda for reforms of the Capitalist system is sheer waste of efforts. The only fundamental and useful propaganda is that for free Communism and the Soviets

SHOULD THE LABOUR PARTY NOW TAKE OFFICE?

It is astonishing, and we think regrettable, to find the 'Daily Herald' which is presu-med to express the Labour Party official poliev, claiming that the Labour Perty should new form a Government without the support of one of the Capitalist parties. Such support would only be bought at the price of adopting capitalist policies and sacrificing Labour principles. To assume that the Labour Party, which has a smaller number of seats than the Tory Party, can hold office when the Fories cannot, is to assume that the Labour Party has more kinship with Liberals than have the Tories. To justify that assumption one would have to declare Free Trade versus Protection to be a bigger question than anything in the Labour Party pro-gramme and to dismiss the issue of Socialism

Labour Party should secure office now to carry out certain reforms. A Labour Government taking office now would, of course, only do what its Liberal supporters

Labour officials to be so lacking in astute- thing has become quite customary in Italy.

ness as to risk their political reputations by The Social Democrats of Germany have endeavouring to take office on the sufferance of a Liberal-Tory majority. Mr. Mac-Donald's success as a Labour leader would be short-lived indeed were he to accept the Premiership under such conditions.

WE DO NOT ANTICIPATE, HOW-EVER, that the Labour Party will be given the chance of forming a Government till it possesses an Centre Block? actual Parliamentary majority. the most it is likely to be offered at present is some seats in a Coalition Government. To accept that would be the height of folly, though the Labour Party committed that folly during the war, and robably will again, it probably would refuse o do so if invited at this juncture.

The Manchester Guardian is advocating a The Manchester Guaratan is advocating a Liberal - Labour Government; but Mr. Asquith's declaration, as soon as the result of the election could be judged, was that the main tasks of the Liberal Party are to fight Protection and Socialism. That seemed to indicate a refusal to coalesce with either Tories or Labour. The most likely alternative was the recent agrees to be either that tives at the moment appear to be either that the Tories will continue as the Government for a few months till another General Elec-tion is called, or that a Centre Block Govern-ment will be formed of some Tories, the Lloyd Georgian Liberals, and a few Asquithians.

On the other hand, a Labour-Liberal Government could be secured if the powers that be thought it opportune to show that the

All should be . . .

The Baldwin Government stays in for the present, but how long will it last?
One of the first utterances of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, flushed with partial victory was one

To Make the Partial victory, was one that boded early war with France. It was made to the London correspondent of the Paris "Matin." By no means what one expects from a Socialist was his statement that the British people are not well disposed towards France, that nothing would be easier than to rouse opinion against her, that British opinion cannot understand why a flourishing France takes no steps to pay her debt to England, that a large section of the public regards French policy as one of the causes of unemployment, and that "if France wants the Entente to be maintained France wants the Entente to be maintained she should make the first steps towards us." The last phrase is typically non-Socialist, non-international. That Mr. MacDonald should have chosen the hour when the loss of the Tory majority caused his own Premiership to be discussed to make this statement shows clearly enough that he will be no pacifist in office. The marked friendliness with which Mr. MacDonald is treated at Court speaks the same truth more subtly, yet more surely. wersus Capitalism altogether.

The Daily Herald gave space on its front page to an article entitled "What a Labour Government could do," It argued that the Imperialists.

Mr. Mussolini has dismissed the Italian In spite of the Daily Herald's demand for Labour Government without a majority which it, we find difficulty in believing the Democracy.

MR. Mussolini has dismissed the Italian Chamber until the next election, which may or not be in April. That sort of again displayed the The German Powers Bill. Powers Bill. porting the Powers Bill t give Dr. Marx, the new Chancellor, and hi 'abinet, absolution from Parliamentary of trol till February 15th. Only 18 members vote against the Bill. These included Communist. Bavarian Peasants and Independents. T Powers Bill provided for a committee of M.P.'s to watch the situation and report, he without power to act or influence the Government in any way. The Social Democrat accepted the Bill on securing the appointment of this committee, and the III. International Communists have accepted a seat on i

ANOTHER little fight for freedom and demo British and French AggresBritish admirals landed British and sion at Canton. marines at Canton, Southern China, to occupy the Custo House. Sun Yat Sen, a believer in constit tional democracy, who is fighting to establis Parliamentary government in China on We European lines, or something a trifle madvanced, had declared his army would see the Custom revenues because the admin-tration, which is under British and Fren-control, is handed over to the autocra Pekin Government for its war against democratic forces of the south. Sun Yat agets no foreign subsidies in his struggle; depends on the support of Chinese pe who wish at least to be free of the

Our liberty-loving rulers, as usual, are backing the reaction. They are doing it in the name of freedom and progress, no doubt.

Embankment.

There in a grey green ground, Murky with mist and rain Little lights gleam— There is a faint far sound As of a soul in pain And hate supreme. Small sad flowers of flame Glint from the formless mist On the still deep—
And he without home or name Then in the silent night The soft swish of the wind, Like a deep breath Stavs in its hurried flight And whispers to my mind Strange things of Death.

Churchill's Record.

FROM RUSSIA.

Revolutionaries Imprisoned.

The Russian Government some time issia, after Kronstadt had been Russia, after Kronstadt had been brutarly suppressed. A large number of these sailors, trusting the promises of the Bolsheviki, returned to Russia. But no sconer had they entered Soviet Russia when they were all arrested, and after long imprisonment were on September 20th sentenced to three years concentration camp in the far north.

concentration camp in the far north.

Amongst the returned sailors sentenced to Solovetsky Camp are members of the Russian Communist Party, who left it in the days of the Kronstadt uprising. The Secretary of the Kronstadt Revolutionary Committee. Participants in the 1905 Revolution. Peasants who were imprisoned under the Czar. Members of the Red Army. They were sailors on liners of the Red Army. They were sailors on liners and men of war, working men, peasants, electrical workers, art workers. One of them was taken to Moscow early in September and his fate is unknown. Some of them had participated in three Revolutions.

M. Mratchny, Secretary of the Joint Committee for the Defence of Revolutionists

Imprisoned in Russia, reports:— Comrade David Kogan (Lev Rubin), a very exceptional personality and a well-known revolutionary anarchist, who had been frequently imprisoned by Denikin, was arrested in Mosimprisoned by Denikin, was arrested in Aloseow in October, 1922, together with another comrade, Ivan Akhtirsky. Since then bot have disappeared. It is worth mentionin that the sister of Kogan—Kuibisheva—th wife of a very high Communist official, is also unable to get any information. Comrade Kogan is suffering from heart disease.

The well-known Anarcho-Syndicalist, and manager of "Golos Truda," the only Anarchist publication in Russia—Comrade Rubintshik—was arrested in September and still remains in prison, very sick with scorbut.—From the Bulletin of the Joint Committee for the Defence of Parallis is in the second of the Joint Committee. for the Defence of Revolutionaries Imprisoned in Russia.

South African News.

Jubilation for the Chamber of Mines.

The Chamber of Mines is shouting for jo over by Dr. Krause, has decided that regulations under the Mining Act (familia known as the colour bar), which excl natives from certain branches of abour, is ultra vires, and that no disc tion based on colour can be enforced without the explicit sanction of an Act of Parliament The appeal has its origin in the unsuccessful prosecution brought by the Crown against Mr. Hildiek Smith (Crown Mines).

The Attorney-General applied for a ruling on a question of law in the case in which the on a question of law in the case in which the respondent was acquitted by the magistrate in Johannesburg. He was charged with the contravention of the Mines, Works and Machinery Regulations, in that, as manager, in the eastern section of the Crown Mines, he permitted an electric locomotive to be in charge of one Stevens, a native.

charge of one Stevens, a native.

The magistrate acquitted the respondent on the grounds that the regulation (No. 179 of 1911) itself was ultra vires, mainly because it was unreasonable, and also because it did not apply to all classes alike. The Court was therefore asked to say whether the magistrate was right, whatever the grounds may have been, on which he based his finding.

In concluding his summing up, his lordship said: In all the circumstances of this case I have come to the condusion that Regulation 179 is ultra vires under the provisions of the Enabling Act, No. 12, of 1911.

Mr. Justice Findall and Mr. Justice Morice

more profits.

The basis of the S.A.L. Party is the fact that all wealth is produced by labour, manual or mental, and to secure to the producer the benefits of his labour.

The basis of the S.A.L. Party is the fact that all wealth is produced by labour, manual or mental, and to secure to the producer the benefits of his labour.

The basis of the S.A.L. Party is the fact that will be so that the doors of Governments are to be laid all the evils that exist in society its party in the society.

In South Africa the whole of the manual work is done by the native, which puts the S.A.L. Party in the difficult position of having, either to declare that the native worker shall enjoy the fruits of his labour, or else very. omic principles do not apply where

The result of the above legal decision by (with the exception of a few whites as super dividends for the cosmopolitan shareholders.

While the Trade Union movement in South Africa is in its present chaotic state, no progress can be made towards the realisation of our objective. our objective—the revolution. The problem is how can we develop solidarity in the minds of both Europeans and coloured workers. How can we guide the economic activities so that the greatest results can be obtained in plain to every intelligent man and woman in South Africa that their conditions are getting worse, that the exploitation is increasing y by year, and that only the destruction Capitalism in South Africa can mean freedom

ISAAC VERMONT.

Government the Workers' Enemy.

By A. B. Howie.

As we are the eve of a new Government, it would be wise, fellow workers, to ask ourselves What is Government? Do we, as workers

Surely you must be sick of being taxed, exploited, law-crushed, and robbed.

I am sure, if you think seriously, you must feel the heavy burden of taxation continually on your back. It is the Big Ugly Machine, Government, that does no useful work, and just exists by taxes, whether you can afford them or not. It has no feeling, no sympathy; it is there to govern, to rule, to dictate. You have only to obey.

That is the reason we Free Communists want you to do a littl ethinking of your own.

Government is based or organised violence. It is the monster that keeps the toilers in subjection toiling for the drones—the capitalists.

The politician's promises are never put into operation, and never will be, as they are tools of a machine that only operates to keep the system of robbery running in the interest of the rich: You may vote Liberal, Tory, Labour, Socialist.

or State Communist; it is all the same—govern-ment is only to defend the rich against the poor.

Mr. Justice Findall and Mr. Justice Morice

Mr. Justice Findall and Mr. Justice Morice

What is your ballot good for?

On the all-important native question, Colonel Creswell, leader of the S.A.L. Party, seems to have nothing to advise but segregation, which is simply running away from the problem to catch votes. It is not a colour question, but one of economics. The native is employed not because he is better, but hecause he is chapter and therefore provides all the evils that exist in society, its path is strewn with countless millions of human wrecks, its forms of authority. Human beings of refined sensibilities spurn dictation. For them one law exists, the law of nature; and that will only be

OUR BOOKSHOP.

THE ANCIENT LOWLY: A History of the Ancient Working People from the Earliest Kn. wn Period to the Adoption of Christianity by Constantine. By C. Osborne Ward. Two vols., 12s. 6d. each.

ANCIENT SOCIETY; or, Researches in the Lines of Human Progress; from Savagery through Barbarism to Civilisation. By Lewis H. Morgan. 7s. 6d.

THE ART OF LECTURING. By Arthur M. Lewis. A condensed manual of practical information for those who wish to fit themselves to become public speakers, particularly on economics and social science. 3s.

CAPITAL TO-DAY. By Herman Cahn. study of recent economic development. 8s. 6d.

THE CHANGING ORDER. By Oscar Lovell Triggs, Ph.D. A study of Democracy, of the rising tide of revolution, and of the ways in which the future self-rule of the working class sophy and religion, upon work and play.

THE DEPORTATIONS DELIRIUM OF 1920: A Personal Narrative of an Historic Official Experience. By Louis F. Post, Assistant Se-cretary of Labour of the United States from 1913 to 1921. This book deals with the notorious deportations at the time of the socalled "Palmer Bed Baids." 6s 6d

THE ECONOMIC CAUSES OF WAR. By Achille Loria, translated by John Leslie Garner. 5s. 6d.

ECONOMIC DETERMINISM; or, The Economic Interpretation of History. By Lida Parce. 5s. 6d.

THE EIGHTEENTH BRUMAIRE OF LOUIS BONAPARTE. By Karl Marx. A history of France showing the economic forces behind the warring factions, starting with the triumph of the financial capitalists over the feudal lords in 1830, explaining the subsequent victory of the bourgeries over the forces. victory of the bourgeosie over the financial capitalists in 1848, and showing in detail the events leading up to 1851 when Louis Bonaparte became emperor. 3s.

THE END OF THE WORLD. By Dr. M. Wilhelm Meyer. Tells us of the dramas of sun, world and moon disasters in the heavens, how worlds explode, collide and are destroyed; what causes earthquakes, volcanoes, mountains. We learn that all planets grow cold or are destroyed, sometimes after living tens of millions of centuries, and Dr. Meyer assures us that our own earth is in the bloom of youth, likely to continue to exist for unknown ages, while our moon is now in its decrepit old age.

Lessons for Young Proletarians

The locomotive engine which Stephenson constructed for Killingworth Colliery in 1815 continued working usefully for many years. Its author continued his experiments, and next applied himself to the improvement of the road. He considered the rail of great importance, and spoke of the rail and the wheel as man and wife. In 1816 he took out a patent for rails in conjunction with Mr. Tosh, a wealthy iron-founder. Stephenson early declared the advisability of tunnelling through hills and raising low ground in order to make the railways level, and thus economise power. In 1817 he built a locomotive for the Duke of Portland for use in Ayrshire. In 1819 he built a railway for the Holton Col-

In 1819 his son Robert left school and became an apprentice viewer in Killingworth Colliery. In 1822 Robert Stephenson went for six months to Edinburgh University, where he won a prize for mathematics. Having learnt shorthand be-fore going to Edinburgh, Robert took down the notes of the lectures verbatim, and copied them out word for word for his father's benefit.

The railways we have hitherto referred to were

The first public Railway Act was passed in 1801, authorising the construction of a public railway from Wandsworth to Croydon called "The Surrey Iron Railway."

Twenty-six miles of railway were constructed, and any person was at liberty to put wagons on the line and to carry goods within the prescribed rates. The wagons were worked by horses, mules and donkeys. The railway did not prove a paying proposition, but continued to be worked till 1837, when the London and Brighton line was

It should be observed that when railways first came into use they were not regarded as the road-ways for locomotives but for horse drawn vehicles. In those early days of railways the battle of argument and interest was between them, the canals, and the turnpike roads. Sir Richard Phillips, in a book written in 1813, advocated double lines of railway from London to Edinburgh, Glasgow, Holyhead, Milford, Falmouth, Yarmouth, Dover, and Potrsmouth, declaring that horse-drawn mail coaches would travel by them at ten miles an hour and Blenkinsop's steam en-

From 1766 there had been discussion of a canal project between Stockton and Darlington. The canal was not made, but later a railway began to be suggested and a Stockton Committee was appointed to consider it in 1810. Nothing happened. Then a Darlington Committee was railway. It applied to Parliament for permission, but was defeated by the opposition organised by the Duke of Cleveland, whose fox covers would have been interfered with. The composition of the proposal to use steam engines. Finally, however, it was agreed that Stephenson should construct three locomotives, the first of which was named "Locomotives, the first of which was named to use the proposal to use steam engines. Finally, however, it was agreed that Stephenson should construct three locomotives, the first of which was named "Locomotives, the first of which was named to use the proposal to would have been interfered with. The railway motion.

but whilst the engineers and inventors stood help- him, to drink success to the railway, and said : less, money replied to money. Edward Pease issued a circular that the railway company would purchase the toll mortgages at the price originally given for them. This somewhat placated the interests, and though still strongly opposed the Bill went through.

The railroad was to be free to all persons for company was empowered to charge 4d. per ton per mile for coal intended for Iand sale. Only a halfpenny per ton was allowed for coal in-tended for shipment at Stockton, this provision being secured by the man who later became Earl of Durham, because he desired to prevent competition with his coal loaded at Sunderland and did not believe that any one could afford to carry coal at a halfpenny per ton per mile. The low rate led, however, to the great success of the delayed commencing it for some time. George Stephenson had learnt of the project, and in 1821 he went with Nicholas Wood, the viewer at

He told Pease that he was "only the engin wright at Killingworth," but begged him to come there "to see what my engines can do." Pease did not accept the invitation then, but the result of Stephenson's visit was his appointment to survey the land for the Stockton and Darlington railway, and in May, 1822, the first rail was laid.

The intention of the directors was to use horse power on the railway, but Stephenson pressed for locomotives, and continued urging Pease to examine his engines at Killingworth. At last he prevailed, and from that day Pease supported the locomotive, and inserted in the amended Stockton and Darlington railway Bill a clause empowering the use of locomotives. The Act was secured in 1823. Stephenson had hitherto worked with ordinary mechanics working at the collieries of the North of England. To perfect thes tructure of the locomotive he considered it necessary to concentrate a number of good workmen on locomotive work and to enable then to increase their skill. He conceived the idea of establishing an engine factory in Newcastle, and did so with the £1,000 he had received for inventing the safety lamp and £1,000 contributed by Edward Pease and Thomas Richardson. This later became a gigantic enterprise, but it passed through many trials first.

Stephenson had a financial interest in supplying to the company the cast-iron rails that he and Losh had patented in 1816, but he advised company to have mallable rails, which he had since discovered to be much better. Mallable rails cost £12 per ton, cast iron rails £5 10s.; the company only agreed to half the rails being malleable on that account.

appointed with Edward Pease,, a Quaker, as one of its members. Nothing but talk eventuated till 1818, when a company was formed to build the railway. It applied to Parliament for permistrous to use steam engines. Finally, however, it was agreed that Stephenson should construct these agreed that Stephenson should construct these The question of the tractive power to be used

Bill was re-drafted so as to avoid the fox covers and reintroduced, but was opposed by those who had vested interests in the tolls charged on turnpike roads.

The railway was opened on September 27th, 1825, having taken three years to construct. On the opening day Stephenson took a meal at an inn with his son Robert and John Dixon. He Capitalism was barring the way to progress; opened a bottle of wine, which was unusual with will live to see the day when railways will supersede almost all other methods of convey-ance in this country—when mail coaches will become the great highways for the king and his subjects. The time is coming when it will be cheaper for a working man to travel on a railway than to walk on foot. I know there are great, almost insuperable, difficulties to be encountered; but what I have said will come to pass as sure as you now hear me.

' I only wish I may live to see the day, though that I can scarcely hope for, as I know how slow all human progress progress is, and with what difficulty I have been able to get the locomottive introduced thus notwithstanding my more than ten years' essful experiment at Ricklingworth.'

A great concourse of people were present see the opening of the railway. A procesion was formed on the line, headed by Locomotion," driven by George Stephen and drawing twelve wagons laden with twenty-one wagons filled with passenprocession. The train was only expected to from four to six miles an hour. Men, and children ran and gentlemen on favourable point in the road Henderson called behind all that were trying to keep

"Whitehaven Gazette" had dis. missed as "too chimerical to be entertained' the idea that "steam carriages could travel t a rate almost equal to the fleetest norse!"
The coach in which the directors tray led named by Stephenson the "Experif seats on each side, and a deal table in the

A fortnight after the opening of the line he "Experiment" began to run regularly to earry passengers. It was given out to a conractor and like other coaches which also began to run it was drawn not by locomotive ower but by a horse. Several private comes were organised by the inn keepers of Stockton and Darlington for taking passengers on the railway. The railway company bought up old stage coach bodies and mounted them on an underframe with flange

Old Dixon, who drove the "Experimental," Old Dixon, who drove the Experimental, used to place a lighted candle on the table of he "Experiment" t night, and so was the first to start railway carriage lighting.

The railway was so much used, the trains grew so long, and the traffic was so profitable health the state of the state of that the company, which had first allowed all comers to use the line on payment of the fees, stepped in to monopolise the working of the traffic. The dividends obtained by the railway sh areholders were so satisfactory as o give great encouragement to proceed fur-her with railway undertakings.

In order to provide further accommodation the rapidly increasing coal traffic Mr. Edward Pease bought about 500 or 600 acres of land on the Tees and there founded the sepport of Middlesbrough, where had been only a solitary farm house.

THE GERMINAL CIRCLE. THIRD MEETING. WEDNESDAY, DEC. 19th, 7-11 p.m Ashburton Restaurant, 28, Red Lion Square, W.C.1.

EXHIBITION OF DRAWINGS by various

READINGS of their WORKS by various

Music. Refreshments.

Admission Free

Silver Collection.

Our Bookshop.

Peter Kropotkin.—Conquest of Bread, 2s.; Fields, Factories and Workshops, 2s.; Mutual Aid, 2s.; War, 2d.; Modern Science and Anarchism, 1s.; Appeal to the Young, 2d.; Expropriation, 2d.; The Wage System, 2d.

De Leon .- As to Politics, 9d.; Two Pages from Roman History, 4d.; Socialism v. Anarchism, 3d.; Who Pays the Taxes? 2d.; Burning Question of Trade Unionism, 2d.; Marx on Mallock, 2d.; Preamble of the Industrial Workers of the World, 2d.; What Means This Strike? Berger's Hit and Misses, 9d.; Fifteen Ques-

Wilhelm Liebknecht.-No Compromise, 8d. Memoirs of Marx, 3s. 6d.

E. Lipson.—Economic History, Middle Ages,

Lissagarry.—History of the Commune, 1871 (translated by Eleanor Marx Aveling), 4s. 6d. Jack London.—Michael, Brother of Jerry, 2s.; Mack London.—Michael, Brother of Jerry, 2s.; Mutiny of the Elsinore, 2s.; Revolution, 2s.; The Human Drift, 2s.; John Barleycorn, 2s.; The Jacket, 2s.; The Red One, 2s.; War of the Classes, 2s.; The Night Born, 1s. 6d.; When God Laughs, 1s. 6d.; The Road, 1s. 6d.; The Scarlet Plague, 1s. 6d.; The Strength of the Strong, 1s. 6d.; Before Adam, 1s. 6d.; The House of Pride, 1s. 6d.; Love and Life, 1s. 6d.; Children of the Frost, 1s. 6d.; The Valley of the Moon, 2s. and 6d.; He Renounced the Faith, 1s.

Karl Marx .- Capital (Vols. I., II., III.), each 128.6d.; The Paris Commune, 2s. 6d.; Value, Price and Profit, 6d.; Wage Labour and Capital, 3d.; The Gotha Programme, 3d.; Critique of Political Economy, 6s. 6d.; Poverty of Philo-sophy, 6s. 6d.; Revolution and Counter-Revolution, 2s. 6d.; Civil War in France, 3s.; Civil War in France (Kerr's edition), 1s. 6d.

Marx and Engels .- Communist Manifesto, 3d. Olive Schreiner.-Woman and Labour, 4s. 6d. Woman and War, 6d.; Dream Life and Real Life, 1s.; Dreams, 2s.; The Sunlight Lay Across My Bed, 6d.; Trooper Peter Halkett, 1s.; Story of an African Farm, 3s. 6d.

THE EVOLUTION OF PROPERTY. By Paul Lafargue. Capitalist economists try to prove that capital—the form of property existing at present, is older than man. They say it must be eternal. Lafargue shows us how property actually arose and how its forms have constantly changed, from communism, to feudalism, to capitalism, and how its inevitable tendency is toward international Communism.

EVOLUTION, SOCIAL AND ORGANIC. Arthur M. Lewis. Traces the growth of the theory of evolution from the early Greek philosophers down to Darwin, Haeckel and Spencer, and also shows how the working-class theories of social evolution have gradually won their way to the front, even among the theorists of the universities. 3s.

FEUERBACH: THE ROOTS OF THE SOCIAL PHILOSOPHY. By Frederick Engels. This book is a criticism of a forgotten philo sopher, but it has a great and permanent value, since the dualistic theories of Feuerbach are make Socialism a Religion of Humanity. Engels shows here the importance of explaining history and current events in terms of science r than theology. 3s

GERMS OF MIND IN PLANTS. By R. H. France. The author shows us the dramatic experience of plants; how they feed the insects honey to reward them for carrying the fruetifying pollen; how they know the law of gravity; how they bait and trap their prey. Still more, Mr. France shows us how the sense organs communicate news to the whole plant, and proves that plants possess a high degree of consciousness, and even the germs of mind.

Reflections of a Miner.

ESSAYS ON THE MATERIALISTIC CONCEP-TION OF HISTORY. By Antonio Labriola. Translated by Charles II. Kerr. 5s. 6d.

changing ruling classes, and how the capitalist class keeps the workers in poverty and toil by imposing moral ideas on them that benefit the ten. It contains many proofs of evolution discovered since Darwin wrote. Illustrated with pictures showing the different forms of

You must be Self-supporting.

PROLETCULT

A monthly magazine for boys and girls, edited by Tom Anderson and published by the Proletarian Bookstall. 39, Shuttle Street,

ONE PENNY.

HEAD READING, by an expert phrenologist .-Proceeds to "Wor Apply, H., Box 20. "Workers' Dreadnought."

WANTED, a copy of "Theatre Craft" (No. 3).

Spice

Making Friends.

French and German capitalism is beginning to co-operate in the Ruhr; the miners are to

The Immediate Reaction upon Votes.

Mr. H. G. Wells says he will not stand for Parliament again because he finds it very embarrassing to one's mental freedom to have a political association on one's hands.

One has to be absurdly guarded in one's statements if one is thinking of the immediate reaction upon varies." reaction upon votes.

Winston Churchill in the Box.

Mr. Churchill is being put through a sharp examination, but his late colleagues will see that he is whitewashed.

What Poincaré Wants.

THICS AND THE MATERIALISTIC CONCEPTION OF HISTORY. By Karl Kautsky. Shows the origin of moral and ethical ideas; how they have changed to fit the needs of the What we want is for the General Staffs of both countries to reach an agreement on the text of a military convention which would define clearly the importance of the eventual THE EVOLUTION OF BANKKING. By Robert II. Howe. 3s.

THE EVOLUTION OF MAN. By Wilhelm Boelsche. One of the best and simplest explanations of the evolution theory ever written. It contains many proofs of evolution discovered since Darwin wrote. Illustrated force, and I considered this was a mistake, and mentioned the matter to King George on the control of the control of the control of the control of the method of Nations, where the British delegates supported it. I hope, 'added M. Poincaré, 'that the British Government will soon adhere to our point of view was upheld at the League of Nations, where the British delegates supported it. I hope, 'added M. Poincaré, 'that the British Government will soon adhere to our point of view on the British delegates supported it. I hope, 'added M. Poincaré, 'that the British Government will soon adhere to our point of view on the British delegates supported it. I hope, 'added M. Poincaré, 'that the British Government will soon adhere to our point of view on the British delegates supported it. I hope, 'added M. Poincaré, 'that the British Government will soon adhere to our point of view on the British delegates supported it. I hope, 'added M. Poincaré, 'that the British Government will soon adhere to our point of view on the British delegates supported it. I hope, 'added M. Poincaré, 'that the British Government will soon adhere to our point of view on the British delegates supported it. and mentioned the matter to King George on the occasion of my visit to London."—A statement in the French Parliament, Decem-

"The dancers in the [Savoy] ballroom were able to watch the election results on a 'touring board without interrupting their enjoyment."—Savoy Hotel Press Circular.

'DREADNOUGHT'' £1,000 FUND. S. Llewellyn, 6d.; G. P. Bailey, 3/-; G. Brown, 3/-; L. Goldstein, 5/-; T. Vermont, 2/-; H. Taylor, 3/-; E. T. Leonard and hopmates, 5/-. Total for week, £1 1s. 6d. Total, £164 19s. 81d.

WORKERS' OPPOSITION IN RUSSIA.

By Alexandra Kollontay.

6d.

Half-past Five A.M.

At half-past five in the morning the dark, cold winter morning, fellow-worker, you are going to work on foot over sticky pavements, and in the infrequent trams and 'buses. It is slow going to work, those conveyances run so sparcely.

My lord and my lady are lying between the sheets. They will rest there a few hours yet, whilst you are carrying on

The papers are full of the admirals in the witness-box. You have not forgotten the election yet, fellow-worker, though the newspaper always wants you to pass on to something else: that is journalism, fellow-worker. Your interest in the election was a little more than passing, fellow-worker; when they offered you Gatwick Naps and all the winners, you wanted election news.

There are some things on your mind, fellow-workers, concerning the election; things are causing the workers of Tory London to vote Labour.

These things are: -

Housing, Unemployment, and Solidarity.

Housing is a very urgent question for you, fellow-worker; you and your mates have no room to live in decency.

Unemployment is pressing, the rates are crushingly high on account of it; and the Guardians are cutting down relief. Many a good chap has only the workhouse or the Labour Colony before him.

A few months at Belmont send a man back to his old haunts to search for workthat fruitless search.

All he has in the world is on his back, fellow-worker, except what he carries about Where does he sleep? Wherever he can, fellow-worker. If he can muster eight pennies, he can go to a Salvation Army shelter. The bed will be verminous, so I am told, fellow-worker; but the Army does not provide him a morsel of food, nor even a cup of tea for his eightpence.

cup of tea for his eightpence.

Christian charity in a Christian land! They will save your soul without charge, but a lousy bed costs eightpence a time.

The charitymongers have not the means to do better, they say. Doubtless so; but men should not be driven to exist on other people's charity.

Yes, fellow-worker; housing and unemployment are pressing questions; but solidarity is greater.

Solidarity embraces all the other questions.

Solidarity embraces all the other questions. Solidarity has led you to send Labour candidates to Parliament to-day, fellow-

Some day solidarity will lead you further than that, fellow-worker; it will lead you to set up Workers' Councils of your own.

THE SEARCHLIGHT.

THE "ONE BIG UNION BULLETIN"

(Canada's Foremost Labour Paper).

The One Big Union seeks to organise the workers on class lines. Read about it.

Eugene Sue's marvellous story: "The Mysteries of the People," or "Illistory of a Proletarian Family Across the Aces," now running in serial form.

10/- per year; 5/- six months.

Plebs Buildings, 54 Adelaide Street, Winnipeg, Canada.

THE "GERMINAL CIRCLE." 152, Fleet Street, London, E.C.4.

The "Germinal Circle" exists to assist in promoting the expression of modern ideas and

To the Secretary, "Germinal Circle,"

I wish to join the "Germinal Circle," and enclose one shilling to cover the annual subscrip-

Name

"THE WORKERS FRIEND,"

Monthly, 2d. Monthly, 2d.

I am sorry that I only see you monthly. hope you will wake me up and then I shall be with you weekly. I was not tired, but you made me tired. Your sufferings which I could not bear to see woke me and I shall go hand in hand with you till we shall be free from slavery and starvation. very and starvation.

Steam and General Machine Repairs, seeks employment or will undertake auto or mechanical repairs; 17 years experience States and Canada; 2 years proprietor of machine-equipped garage; estimates on reconditioning.—Box 76. SUBSCRIBERS.

A certain number of subscribers have fallen A certain number of subscripers have later into arrears with their payments, and as we need funds very urgently we urge them to pay up at once. Their papers are marked each week with the date-when their subscription expired. Rates: 18. 7½d. three months, 3s. 3d. six months, 6s. 6d. twelve months.

Some of our is, a week subscribers, too, need a reminder that their subscriptions are due.

BOOKS IN ESPERANTO.

Melodioj de l'Nokto. Julius Kriss	.9d.
Mondo kaj Koro (Kalocsav)	5d.
Omar Khayyam, (Pollen). (English and Esperanto)	3/6
Parnaso de Popoloj (Grabowski)	2/-
Rolandkanto. D-ro Noel
Sinjoro Tadeo (Mickiewicz). A. Gra-	2/3
Trafendita Turo (poezio) (Cart)	0.7
howeki)	2d.
bowski)	5/- Espero, La (Zamenhof). de Menil. With piano accompaniment; for baritone or mezzo-soprano	6d.
Espero, La (M) (Zamenhof), F. de Menil.
Postcards each ½d., doz.	6d.
* Four Songs for Children (M) (Applebaum), Mabon	1/-
Haleluja Hero (kvarvoĉa) (J. Edwards)
Handel	1d.
Avarvoĉaj Kantoj (ses kantoj) Trickett	6/8
Mia Esperantistino (M) (Page), Moonie	3d.
	od.

From "Dreadnought" Bookshop, 152, Fleet St.,

Read EIRE The Irish Nation Weekly Review of Irish Republican Opinion

PRICE TWOPENCE

On Sale Saturdays

Germinal

ASK for No 2. at your Newsagent.

A Complete play by Toller Stories by Marsden. Gorky, Grant, and others.

32 Pages—Sixpence

COMMUNIST WORKERS' MOVEMENT, moetings to explain the policy of this movement, can be arranged on application to the Secretary, 152, Fleet Street, E.C.4.

McCARTNEY, 26, Pasley Road, Manor Place, Walworth Road, S.E.17, is starting a group of the Communist Workers' Movement. Those desirous of joining should communicate with him.

SYLVIA PANKHURST is booking provincial lecturing engagements.—Apply for dates to "Dreadnought" office, 152, Fleet Street.

To get the address of a good DENTIST apply to the undersigned, who discovered him through the "Dreadnought," and wants to pass on his discovery to other comraded. You will all need a dentist SOME DAY, so write a postcard NOW to R. Scott, Wayside, Capel, Surrey.

FOR SALE. — Engineer's Taper Guage, £1; Radius Guage, 7s. 6d. (Starrett's). Proceeds for "Dreadnought" Fund.

WANTED.—Second-hand copies: "How the War Came," by Lord Loreburn; "Economics for the General Reader" (Clay); "Brass Check" (Upton Sinclair), cheap edition; "Ancient Lowly" (Osborn Ward).

RATIONAL LIVING.

A radical, independent magazine for the workers, devoted to the teaching of rational methods of living in present society, always emphasising the social-economical-industrial background of wrong living. Stands for prevention of disease, for conservation of health, for drugless healing, and against all swindles in the healing professions. Special price for the readers of the "Workers' Dreadnought," 1.50 dol. (7/6 for 12 numbers). Our famous book, "The Child and the Home," by Dr. B. Liber, on the radical unbringing of children, special price for the readers of the "Workers' Dreadnought," 1.50 dol. (1/6). Address: Rational Living, 61 Hamilton Place, New

To the readers of

THE WORKERS' DREADNOUGHT.

All you have to do is to cut this coupon out and write your name and address in ink and send it to the "Workers' Dreadnought" Office: 152, Fleet Street, London, E.C.4., when you get 24 coupons.

Name:

Address:

15 WATCH THE "DREADNOUGHT"

YOUR SUBSCRIPTION

A blue mark in this space indicates that your subscription is now due.

The high cost of production of the paper necessitates prompt payment.

Published by E. Sylvia Pankhurst, at 152, Fleet Street, London, E.C. 4, and printed by the Agenda Press, Ltd. (T.U.), at 10, Wine Office Court, London, E.C. 4.