

This is the new Contraflow format - Smaller, sexier and groovier

We printed 3000 copies of this to just give away free to anyone who looks even the vaguest bit interested. We have also gauged the contents (for this issue at least) to London, because we know there is a genuine political alternative in the Capital with its own potential and momentum that isn't the Labour Party or Lefties, or Greenies, or whatever but is the people and groups we write about in the pages of Contraflow. As if to hammer the point home, we've even added some new features to the paper - there's the Calendar encouraging you to pick a grudge and get stuck in. There's also a list of London groups that we think are useful and worth chatting to.

DO US A FAVOUR !

We want to put this out at least bimonthly but we know that's a fuck of a job, so this is how you can help.

DISTRIBUTION - If we can get people willing to take bundles of Contraflow for their area of London (colleges, libraries, gigs, demos, workplaces, launderettes etc) then our task is made easier.

You can pick 10, 20, 50 copies of Contraflow up front:

• 121 Books, 121 Ralston Road, Brixton, SE24, on W,T,F,Sat 1-5pm (071-274-6655)

• 56a Infoshop, 56 Crampton St, Elephant and Castle, SE17 on M,Tu,F from 3-7pm

Or just write and we'll arrange it somehow. Single issues of C/F are available direct to your letterbox on a one stamp = one issue basis, 2 for 2 etc.

NEWS AND DATES - we want to know what's going on, what you're doing whether it's strikes, squats, riots, rent strikes, sex, slander and libellous gossip. We also want dates for the Calendar, so if your picketing your local bastards, organising a streetparty (with molotovs), putting on a feminist gig, jumble sale, kamikaze action against the cops, then post or fax it to us.

SKINT - We don't get paid to do this nor do we have trust funds to finance Contraflow. We just work hard at getting the cash together if you like us, then send us money. Send us cash, cheques (made payable to A.HODSON) and ripped-off stuff eg, faxes, laser printers.

ELECTRONIC CONTRAFLOW - Yes! you can use a computer to access Contraflow on the Fast Breeder Bulletin Board. You'll find all the files from the latest issue plus other longer stuff that didn't make it in and maybe much else too, from the wacky Fast Breeder crew and cohorts. Their modern number is currently 071-820-8339 but it's changing soon to 071-501-0126. You can use baud rates up to 14400 baud and connect anytime, 24 hours a day. If this sounds interesting but you don't know what the fuck we're talking about contact: FAST BREEDER BM JED, LONDON, WC1N 3XX for an explanation.

DETAINES STRIKE BACK

Over 200 immigration detainees, asylum seekers from third world countries imprisoned while their case is investigated, went on hunger strike in March to protest at the brutal treatment dealt out to them and to demand that they be freed while their cases go on, and that the racist imprisonment of asylum seekers be halted. Many detainees have been held for over a year without any news of their case, pushed around and subject to the usual restrictions of prisoners. Detainees are almost by definition black and poor - you don't get many refugees buying their way into Britain as millionaires have been doing for years. Tighter restrictions are being imposed on refugees all over Europe: Britain as usual is at the forefront of the closing of the borders. The main action took place at Campsfield Detention Centre in Kington near Oxford, where 180 plus detainees mainly from Zaire, Algeria and Ghana started the strike early in March. Others joined in at Harmondsworth Detention centre near Guildford (over 70 went on strike). Winsor Green Prison in Birmingham, Exeter and Pentonville Prisons and elsewhere.

Concentration Campsfield

Campsfield was opened in 1993 and is run by Group 4 - for profit. The authorities there tried to break the strike in the time-honoured manner of the prison system. Several detainees were released, some were promised release if they gave up the strike, others were moved to prisons. They also harassed strikers at night, kept them under constant surveillance, tried to tempt them with plates of food, isolated some within the camp, hassled visitors, and finally moved seriously ill inmates to hospitals where some were force-fed. This didn't pass without opposition though. A local campaign against Campsfield formed in solidarity with the detainees and supporting their demands. They held regular demonstrations at the Centre: at one, 40 hunger strikers held a roof top protest. A demo of 150 people on the 26th March, saw activists lock the gates on the Group 4 security men (who threatened them with arrest for false imprisonment, hah!), scale fences and hang banners on them, occupy a compound and small building on the Centre's grounds. (It seems Group 4 were as slack at stopping them getting in as they usually are at stopping their prisoners getting away!) Several demonstrators were roughed up by security guards. Later demos have seen police held people for being a threat to public order, and move them on for trespass. Although most of the hunger strikers had called it off by the end of March, the struggle is ongoing. There are still individual hunger strikes continuing.

Day Of Action

On April 30th there was a day of action in solidarity against immigration detentions. 200 people picketed Campsfield, and there were also demos at Harmondsworth, Winsor Green (100 people), Pentonville Prison (30 people, mainly Zaireans - Pentonville, incidentally, is where Zairean detainee Omasese Lumumba was killed by screws in October 1991), Canterbury Prison, and Brixton Prison, where there were 20 people, including a detainee released from Wandsworth two days before after a year inside.

JUNE 4TH/5TH: A national demo at Campsfield on Saturday 4th June saw 300 people from all round the country show their solidarity with the detainees there, despite the pissing rain. This time round Group 4 guards went up on the roof of the Centre themselves to prevent any inmates getting up there (or were they protesting about pay and conditions?) However, the following day, Sunday 5th June, a rumour spread through the Centre that an Algerian detainee was about to be deported. This led to protests which developed into a small riot involving quite a few of the inmates, who did £2000 worth of damage to the centre. No-one was seriously injured. In the midst of this disturbance, 6 detainees escaped over the fence, 5 of who are still at large at time of writing! Nice one. 20 of the detainees said to be involved in the riot were shipped out to other prisons the next day.

It's been reported that Pentonville Prison will no longer take imprisoned asylum-seekers, but a new detention centre is to be opened on an old site in Rochester. Immigration act detentions are increasing - they are now up to 200 a month. With a climate of 'cracking down on crime', racist scapegoating of black and asian communities for the state of misery we live in is being stepped up. The hunger strike is a good start to resistance to this trend. Solidarity and action needs to be stepped up in response. Get involved.

BOSNIAaaaargh!

The mere name is almost enough to make people turn off, with feelings of horror and impotence. Yes we know that Serbia and Croatia are trying to carve the place up, with armed terror, mass rape, ethnic cleansing, with 200,000 Bosnians dead and half a million refugees. The UN sit there, enforcing an arms embargo on Bosnia (Serbia having nearly all of the arms of the former Yugoslav army) stopping Bosnian use of the airport at Tuzla, and hoping to force some kind of agreed carve-up against the wishes of the vast majority of Bosnians, including ethnic Croats, Serbs as well as Muslims.

But what do we do about it? International Workers' Aid for Bosnia is at least doing something, getting in convoys of aid to the people of Tuzla, an ethnically mixed, mainly mining town holding out against aggression. This isn't just aid, its solidarity, its letting people in struggle know that others take some interest. In the 1984/5 miners strike here, the Tuzla miners gave up a day's pay a month to send to the strike fund. Solidarity is meant to be mutual.

We have problems with their politics, which there ain't room to go into, but they're getting aid and solidarity through from all over Europe. So send money, offers of help (collecting on a stall, or maybe driving a truck from Split to Tuzla) queries to IWAB c/o 12-14 Thornton Street, London SW9 0BL (not to be confused with the split-off IWAB controlled by the WRP).

EDINBURGH CENTRE OCCUPIED

Edinburgh Unemployed Worker's Centre, a venue for various community and activist groups working on dole issues, anti-Poll Tax, anti-VAT fuel, as well as a cafe, info-shop and meeting space, has been occupied by the people who use the place, after the local Labour council chopped their lease. It's become obvious that the council wants the place evicted so support is vital if the Centre is going to survive. The place has an amazing history of community organising and self-help solutions for working class people. That it should be run by local bureaucrats/losers is an disgrace. E.U.W.C. says "The Centre Stays Open", get up their folks and help their struggle.

- REPEAT AFTER US... McDONALDS ARE LIARS

The case of two activists from the independent London Greenpeace collective who are being sued by McDonalds for libel after distribution of the internationally known leaflet "What's Wrong With McDonalds", has started at the High Court on June 27th. The case is obviously going to be the usual judicic fix with evidence being disallowed and the ridiculous decision not to let a jury judge the case. However, in a fucked up turn of events, McDonalds issued a leaflet to their customers calling the McLibel 2 "liars" before the case had even begun. The McLibel 2 have issued a counter-claim for libel against McDonalds. Wacky eh? We wish all the best to the defendants, Dave and Helen and all other people with energy to get involved and help them out with court monitoring, publicity, demos etc.

Spread The Truth!

V.A.T.

T.A.T.

From 1st April the government added 9% VAT on domestic fuel: this will go up to 17.5% from April 1995. This will obviously increase hardship and suffering for the most vulnerable sections of the working class - the poor, the old, families on low incomes, the disabled and the sick. Cold winters already kill 35,000 people a year in the UK - VAT on fuel may well add 10,000 more. Many of us already live in flats or houses that have damp and condensation, or are hard and expensive to heat. The poorest 20% of the population spends some 12% of their budget on fuel - while the rich spend less than 4.2%. Guess who'll be paying dearly for keeping warm.

VAT'S IT ALL ABOUT ?

VAT on fuel is the latest in a long line of cuts in benefits, wage freezes, rent and price rises. The rich and their servants in the government are determined to make us, not them, pay for the economic depression. Rich parasites like Robert Evans, British Gas chairman, 'earned' £435,000 last year - while 15,000 people had their gas cut off. It's surprising that businesses will be exempt from VAT - while we struggle to heat our homes and eat as well.

IF YOU ASK ME,
I'D LIKE TO SEE A SHORTAGE OF OVERPAID BOSSSES!

FUELING THE FIRES

It's time we stopped taking all this shit and started dishing it out. We should be prepared to make VAT on fuel unworkable in any way we can - non-payment, non-cooperation, physically preventing disconnections of gas and electricity, sharing our knowledge and skill of how to fiddle meters. In Scotland, there are already anti-VAT campaigns being set up along the same lines as the anti-poll tax groups, and actions are already taking place: demos, public meetings, disrupting showrooms. Pensioners groups have also been very active in campaigning against VAT on fuel, as one of the groups most at risk. In London Lambeth Unemployed Action Group have been holding demos to encourage resistance to the fuel tax. On 28th May they had a mock funeral march in memory of all the people who will die from VAT on fuel. 40 people marched down Brixton Road with a huge coffin, playing funeral music! They then occupied both the Gas and Electricity showrooms, to the amusement and support of the folk queuing up inside. SPREADIT. It's about time we ran our communities, so that heating AND EVERYTHING ELSE - housing, food, work, transport, childcare, THE LOT - are under our control and run for our benefit, not for the profits of a rich minority.

 ELECTION SPECIAL! ***

On euro-election day the International Squatters Party picked up four seats - in a skip near Newington Green. They also got a door that makes a very nice kitchen table and a few unidentifiable objects.

SOME TIPS ON HOW TO AVOID PAYING...

- △ Avoid key or card meters if possible, as they can be more easily regulated.
- △ Avoid a meter reading - it means you'll get estimates, and can undercut your bill.
- △ If possible get your account put on or changed to a false name, it's easier to avoid paying if they don't know who you are. These days in London this is hard but not impossible.
- △ All safe ways to fiddle gas/leccy meters should be spread about to as many people as possible. Lets make a dent in their profits - the company bosses need to go on a diet!
- △ Gas and Electricity showrooms should be occupied: lets take the fight to them.

△ Meter-readers should be monitored and information on their movements should be made available so people know who they are and when to avoid them.

△ Try and pay any bills as late as possible - it cuts the profit they get from having money in the bank.

△ Get together to stop people being cut off. If there's enough of us they just can't do it. It's always worth talking to the gas / LEB workers, as they can be sympathetic (especially after recent mass layoffs in both companies).

△ Gas and Electricity showrooms should be occupied: lets take the fight to them.

Criminal Justice Bill...

IT'S CRIMINAL !

The Criminal Justice and Public Order Bill being talked through the British Parliament represents one of the most serious increases in the legal powers of the state for a long time. In previous Contraflow's we've covered some of the clauses in the Bill - abolition of the "right to silence" in police stations, measures against squatters, ravers, 'new age travellers', and other partygoers, more prisons, tougher sentences, more police powers, heavier repression in prisons, DNA fingerprinting for all suspects, new 'terrorism' offences. Amendments to the Bill make it even more bad news - eg the power to evict squatters using 'reasonable force'. The Bill comes down to the criminalisation of more of our lives, the provisions to arrest, convict and jail us easier, and the institutions to stick us in.

What about opposition to the Criminal Justice Bill though? How effective is the organised campaigning against the bill? Is there any chance of stopping it becoming law?

Much of the work being done against the Bill has come from the 'marginalised communities' attacked specifically in certain clauses - travellers, festival-goers and ravers, squatters; the Advance Party (rave organisers), SQUASH (squatters groups), and the Freedom Network (dominated by Green Party types).

Also there have been some noises from 'civil rights' organisations like Liberty and Charter 88. In their own way some of the actions against the bill have been very successful - a massive demo of some 20,000 in central London on May 1st has been the biggest.

AT THE EDGE

But the stark reality is that the anti-Criminal Justice Bill campaign has failed to impact on a lot of people. Partly this is due to the effective news blackout, standard media practice on such campaigns, until there's some violence, when they start screaming. The same was true of the anti-poll tax movement, though, and that grew of its own momentum. Despite the fact that anti-squatting clauses, will no doubt be used to evict tenants as well; that increasing powers for the cops, more prisons etc will always be bad signs for many working class people in our daily lives, and so on. And by working class we don't just mean flat cap stereotypes, we mean all of us who have little or no say in the way our profit-gearred society is run - dole scroungers, single mothers, pensioners, travellers, as well as those of us with jobs. All of us whose only stake this society is to work or survive as best we can, while the rich enjoy the wealth.

Partly tactically though, the opposition propaganda has been limited to 'marginalised communities'. Also, to some extent, the state has managed to effectively criminalise many of us already. All the media propaganda about youth crime, the crime wave, Britain under siege, squatters stealing homes, people dying at raves, etc has fallen on fertile ground. Many working class people DO want a 'tougher line on crime' - because if you look around it is blighting our lives, it's a daily problem we have to face; people ripping each other off, attacking each other, rape, drug-related violence, racist abuse... People want someone to blame for the misery of a lot of their lives, and the voice of the state and the middle class saying 'Blame the criminal underclass, the weirdos, the immigrants, single parents, young people,' are louder and have more resources than us pointing out the criminals in charge of this society, controlling our lives. Even if knowing the system is to blame, we still have to get on with our lives, threatened by burglaries, rape, abusive neighbours or whatever. The so-called protection the state offers us - calling the cops, going to court etc - pit us against each other and isolate us even more.

The Criminal Justice Bill has been securely grounded on years of propaganda, on the fear that 'law-abiding people are under siege'. The press and the government have joyfully maintained the gap that exists between the hardworking classes and 'drop-out' / 'criminal' cultures, exploiting a certain contempt for each other's lifestyles that was there already. On top of this the liberal 'rights lobby' - greens, Liberty etc, are quite rightly regarded as out of touch with the reality of daily life in many areas. Frightening but true there is a feeling of being willing to give up 'freedoms' for an improvement in the state of life around them and less chance of being robbed. The people saying this don't see the robbery of our whole lives under capitalism says a lot about the lack of a serious and effective revolutionary movement in this country.

THERE AIN'T NO JUSTICE...

In our hearts a lot of working class people know that all the 'rights' we have are fragile illusions - here today gone tomorrow. We have no rights that we haven't forced out of the ruling class over the last 600 years under threat of violence, but that can't be taken away by them when we fail to resist. The threat of our rising to destroy them has led the bosses to create a system that is powerful and effective at keeping us down or well off, happy or frustrated, but above all DIVIDED. Our rulers are still in control at the end of the day, no matter what rights we have.

Justice, for which we often fight, when we struggle against this misery or that oppression, has always been the property of the rich. From summary execution in feudal days, to courts martial and church courts, to the modern jury system, we have never had much power over it. OK we have juries, but they are restricted, controlled, middle class, no crimes allowed. Yeah, sometimes we get off, but the system remains, still in control, out of our hands. And it's always been for us, not them - our robberies and murders are crimes punishable by death or jail - theirs are legal, honourable; war and business, pillars of society. At its heart their justice is simply their power to exploit us.

Coming back to the Criminal Justice Bill - how are we going to stop it? Demanding justice is only a stopgap. We should never stop fighting for better daily existence in the present, we have to, to survive. But in my mind, the Greens, Liberty etc are a part of the established order - liberal and radical, but fighting for a more equal exploitation. I'm sick of being exploited, pushed around, arrested; I want an end to it, whether it's by fascist cops or nice democratic cops. A sign of the marginalisation of the opposition to the Bill has been the almost total lack of questioning the increases in prisons, the DNA testing, the new 'terrorism' offences, or any attempt to broaden out beyond the narrow confines of the 'alternative' scene or the parliamentary scene

...JUST US

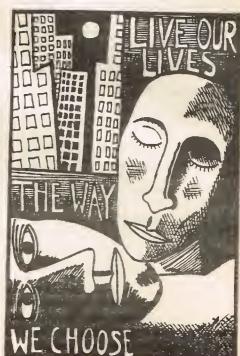

Opposition to the Criminal Justice Bill needs to break out of the margins. In times past campaigns against new repressive laws have founded when the Bill became law. Partly some liberals said, we can't break the law now it's in; partly people had little or no strategy for ongoing resistance.

With the incoming bill, it is vital to oppose it before it comes in, but the real fight begins when we start to face it day to day, like we already face all the other repressive laws brought in against us. This doesn't just mean demos at copshops, deliberate trespasses, and voluntarily getting arrested as the Freedom Network is proposing. It means ongoing resistance and organisation. It means getting across the fact that crime and justice are defined by the powerful, that the whole capitalist system is criminal. We need to create our own ideas and practical methods for not only dealing with anti-social and terrorising acts within our class and communities, but identifying the real criminals at the top. It also means practical understanding of different ways of living, cultural differences, bridging the gap between isolated groups, between law-abiding and law-breaking. Not tolerance but living together, genuine unity of differing viewpoints. It means finding and spreading ways of taking the resources and spaces we need, including using what they call crime - better ways of getting away with dole fraud, insurance scams, ways to fiddle gas and electric, shoplifting, free travel, defending social spaces - seizing back part of what should belong to us anyway. Crime can be a weapon in our hands in the daily fight for existence - carried out collectively it can be a beginning towards a movement for class control. We need to info to allow people to stay out of the hands of the cops, so we don't get caught or sent down; plus community defence, helping people nicked in resistance and survival, getting them off, supporting them inside. We need to create ways of supporting people bringing up kids, communal methods of helping people in dire need and under emotional stress - people we now abandon to the state. Supporting people as a community has to help towards turning any violence and hate away from us, against the rich and their lackeys.... Ultimately it means taking over our areas and kicking out the cops, and banding areas together to take over the whole world - creating the seeds of revolution. It can and will be hard work, but it has its roots in the best elements of working class self-organisation and in 1000s of daily actions going on around us every day. It's not about sacrificing ourselves for some abstract 'community' - it's about us, our needs and desires, creating new communities, new relationships: changing our lives, taking back the whole wealth of the world for ourselves. It can and should be fun as well - a carnival of love and rage. What the 'rights lobby' don't and never will admit is - IT'S WAR; it always was and always will be till the oppressed take power. Concessions might be won but we need to be standing up and saying, "WANT the Lot" we'll take this now but we'll be back for the rest." Repression is part of the war. The capitalists know that they are hitting us hard and will carry on, whenever they can get away with it. There's little doubt that the Criminal Justice Bill will get in. We need to make it unworkable, as we did with the poll tax. Because this is not just the only way to defend ourselves and each other but also holds the potential for a NEW WORLD - one beyond our wildest dreams.

BUILD THE GUARD'S VAN !!

Fare Dodgers Liberation Front in the area...

○ I knew the PDLF was 'in' the area' when a crackly and course compleatly inaudible announcement came over the air at Brixton tube.

Due to a Ticket Inspector under a train at Stockwell, all services to Brixton are delayed til further notice."

I started the interview:

○ What can the average fare dodger punter do then?

○ Simple - resist much and pay little. If by some fluke you've got a ticket, make the inspectors wait, make em sweat, they don't like confrontation either. Make a speech, search all your pockets - point out how well paid they are compared with the workers who actually run the tube. Its amazing to watch the gleam on their faces in their pockets - good luck to em we say!

But in the last few years management have been pretty sucessful at intimidating them into being Good Workers. That's bad for them and bad for us. So it's not only losing fare free zones but also creating more zones for sexual and racial harrassment.

○ Yeah - we want station staff who don't give a fuck about collecting tickets but who do care about people's safety.

○ The circulation of capital is what this whole fare dodging struggle is about.

Fare Dodgers Liberation Front

Box F.D.L.F.

c/o 121 Ralton Rd,

London SE24

The bosses want to get their profits to work...

○ But not to raves?

○ Fuck yeah - ever wondered why the Night buses were so shit. But we want to take the tube so that we can circulate, socialise, organise and fuck shit up. ... But we don't run the trains only use them.

○ Its up to the tube workers really. We can help picket, and generally trash things when necessary, but its their unity against job losses and their management - including tube union boss Jimmy [redacted] Knapp - that'll make the difference.

○ They've got a history of struggle too - in '89 unofficial action brought the system to a halt. Its a matter of self organisation by them - and solidarity from us.

○ Ok. Any final words?

○ Write to us to get a bundle of our radical leaflets. 'A few things you ought to know about the new property fares'. Chuck 'em around the next time you travel on the tube.

○ Yeah - don't panic - and don't pay - thousands of fare dodgers can't be wrong! Happy fare dodging and build the guards van!

SOLIDARITY WITH SPANISH ANTI-MILITARISTS

For over five years the INSUMOS campaign has been fighting to end compulsory military service in Spain. At least ten thousand people have refused to serve in the army or do the "social service" (the supposed alternative if you refuse to go in the army, a bit like a nightmare version of community service) which is used as a state service to fill public service jobs. Hundreds of them have been taken to court and sentenced to between one year and twenty-eight months in jail. These young people are called INSUMOS. At this moment there are 1500 prisoners in jail, each of them 75 people are being held.

especially the justice minister face a situation they don't know how to deal with. Now is the time for an international campaign in support of the INSUMOS and against the Spanish state which is forcing its youth into the army.

Anti-militarists in Spain are asking for solidarity actions at spanish embassies and consulates, such as demos, graffiti or petitions demanding an amnesty for the INSUMOS in prison or on the run, an end to trials of anti-militarists, and the permanent ending of compulsory military and social service. Anyone fancy organising a demo?

PROTESTORS GET FREE RIDE DOWNTOWN AT STALEY DEMO

48 people including members of the clergy, spouses, and Staley Workers Solidarity Committee folk from Chicago, Indiana, and St. Louis and Champion were picked by the cops at the June 4th solidarity sit-down, as wave after wave of supporters entered the Decatur plant to protest the continuing lock-out by the A.E. Staley company. Trucks and scabs were stopped from entering for over three hours and the supervisor Ed Doty, in charge of the plant, was also blocked as 500 UPI/UAW 7837 Union members surrounded the gates. Those picked have been charged variously with 'mob' action, obstructing the police and trespass.

The demo was part of a spring offensive against the company with a massive demo planned for 25th June to mark one year of the lock-out.

AE Staley is part of the Tate group of companies, a London based concern. Solidarity actions on behalf of the workers needed. Anyone want to help out?

TEAMSTER AND BUTTHEAD

Class war U.S. union style erupted on the picket line in North Reading, Massachusetts on April 11, when police arrested 7 Teamsters (union) leaders as nearly 200 strikers clashed with over 50 riot cops outside the gates of Roadway Express, one of the companies hit by a strike during a National Teamsters walkout. The strikers were trying to stop a scab truck when the badgives cops riot, using attack dogs on the crowd and beating a union member who was video-ing the cops assault.

Over 80,000 Teamsters were on strike against national freight hauling outfits over the issues of downsizing, layoffs, part-timing and subcontracting to non-union firms.

In January, Alaska flight attendants negotiated settlement in a three year struggle for contract. Using a technique dubbed by the workers as C.H.A.O.S (Create Havoc Around Our System), pressure was put on management through a series of rotating work slowdowns and strikes that kept Alaska off guard and undermined the airlines reliability with passengers.

Over 80,000 Teamsters were on strike against national freight hauling outfits over the issues of downsizing, layoffs, part-timing and subcontracting to non-union firms.

Beyond the sectionism of the left, not for megalomaniacal rule, but for mutual understanding and coherence. Does this review make any sense?
