Strike in Queensland

The Chairman of the Strike Committee (H. L. Fish) writes in connection with the above, under date 6/4/16:—

above, under date 6/4/10:—
All this part of Queensland are out, the shearers for 32s 6d. per hundred, the shed hands 50s, and pressers 7d, 9d, and 1s per cut. There are some sheds to finish shearing, and they will all fall into line. It was decided to ask the transport workers co-operation at meetings held here and Barcaldine.

There has been a big rainfall here during the last week—from five to nine inches. The weather has cooled off considerably, and from experience I know the poor little fly, a pest to all of us at ordinary times, is going to help use considerably in the sheds, as there is more than 12 months' wool on the sheen. I would ask you to appeal through the organisation for funds to carry on this affair. You can see yourself it is far-reaching. It is all over Queensland, and sure to extend to New South Wales and other States if we are successful. There is a big agitation for an I.W.W. organiser out here. The men are disgusted with the A.W.U.

I was asked at the general meeting the other night the facts in connection with the Barker case, but wasn't quite sure.

I think I have told you the trne position as it is here, and the Barcaldine committee have written to "Direct Action." The "Worker," so far, has only given us, a passing glance. I am forwarding the clinpings from the Queensland "Worker" with this, so you can see what craft union leaders are doing for the wage-slaves. Trusting things are all O.K. down there.

(All members of the I.W.W. in the country who are not in touch with Locals are asked to support the above strike, and send donations to the General Secretary. #### BROKEN HILL NOTES.

Propaganda meetings were held here opposite Post Office in Argent-street on Friday and Sunday evenings last with considerable success, although heavy showers of rain caused us to cut short our meeting on Sunday evening. F.W. Paul Freeman gave another lecture on Economics last Sunday at 11 a.m., which was followed by a speakers' class. These meetings are being held every week, and any worker in Broken Hill is invited to attend.

At the ordinary business meeting held last week, and any worker in Broken Hill is invited to attend.

At the ordinary business meeting held last Sunday afternoon an Agitation Committee consisting of F.Ws. Triffit, Treinvith, and Williams was elected to organise the propaganda activities of the Local, so we hope soon to see the Barrier circulation of 'Direct Action' going up by leaps and bounds. Yesterday we were honored by a visit from the police. After spending fully an hour scrutinising the various cutting, cartoons, pamphleta, etc., with which 'the window of I.W.W. Hall here is covered, two members of the local police force went away and shortly afterwards returned accompanied by the owner of the hall. They entered the hall, and, after gazing upon the varied collection of mental dynamite which adorns the wall, one of them remarked that a peculiar aroma emanated from the room or words to that effect. He was informed by one of the fellow-workers present that the phenomenon mentioned was not confined to the I.W.W. Hall, but was noticeable anywhere in Broken Hill.

Ultimately, the guardian of law and order showed his concern for our welfare by advising the landlord to get a new tenant, and there the matter rests for the present. It is evident that the ploice of Broken Hill have developed a habit of smelling with their eyes and that the offensive aroma aforementioned exudes from the literary contents of our hall

BARKER'S CASE

MR. ANSTEY'S ADVICE.

Fellow-worker King left for Melbourne last week in connection with Barker's case, and encouraging reports have been received with regard to prospective meetings there. We understand that after a short stay in Melbourne King will visit the Barrier to give the necessary publicity to the case in that quarter. give the ... that quarter.

There was an exceptional woll up of L.W.W. members at last week's meeting of the Wharf Laborers' Union. A resolution, condemning the action of the authorities was moved in connection with the conviction of Barker. Evidently the officials of this organisation, if they can avoid it, have no intention of even indirectly censuring their scab President, Little Billy, who was in the first place responsible for the War Precautions Act. Despite the fact that more than two-thirds of those present were in sympathy with the motion, the Chairman, with the approval of the sceretary, suddenly adjourned the meeting, without putting the resolution, on the ground of disorder. This little scheme of the officials to prevent the carrying of the motion was too raw to deceive anybody. The "disorder" was created by two of their own followers, two "drunks" who persisted in creating a scene when the motion was being discussed; the matter was very obviously pre-arranged in order to give the Chairman the excuse he was looking for. The dregs of society, at both ends of the social scale, would appear, by the way, to be Billy's most ardent admirers and supporters. Officialdom in the Wharf Laborers, however, has not yet finished with the I.W.W.

nowever, has not yet finished with the I.W.W.

Sunday's meeting in the Domain was well attended; a collection amounting to £6.5s. was taken up in aid of the Barker Defence Fund. As it is intended to send Fellow-worker Grant to Brisbane in connection with the case, and as expenses are necessary, this handsome donation was doubly welcome. In the evening Luke Jones, of the A.S.P., lectured in the Hall, the subject. being the "Economic Foundations of Patriotism." The Hall was packed, and Jones rose to the occasion with an exceptionally interesting address. Mr. Frank Anstey, M.H.R., was present, and at the conclusion of the lecture was invited by the Chairman and the lecturer to take the platform. Whatever one's opinion of Anstay's views, it is impossible to doubt his sincerity. In a speech of ten minutes he vigorously attacked his own colleagues in the Labor Government, especially in connection with the War Precautions Act, and his remarks to the effect that Billy and Co. were just as servile tools of Capitalism and as subservient in carrying out the dictates of the Money Power, as any of their predecessors, "brought down the house." Hughes' advice to fall on the I.W.W. and other movements "with the ferceity of a Bengal tiger!" was also sarcastically referred to. He concluded by warning the worker against those who asked them to wait until after the war before demanding better conditions, as that would be a time when tapitalists would take unscrupulous advantage of an overstocked labor, market to crush every attempt at betterment. "Now or never is the time to fight," and Mr. Anstey, "when the advantage is on your side." And though Anstey is a politician, the I.W.W. heartily echoes "hear, hear."

Who says the working-class never have ny leisure? Just try to count the unem-

The cost of living will fall when the workers take a tumble. Get wise.

A correspondent wants to know how much a Member of Parliament earns. Up to the present time there is no record of a member of Parliament earning anything—he gets, however, £500 a year and a few perquisites.

"The Empire has found a Man." So says the "Daily Mail" about the microscopic Billy. They mig 't have added, "and Australia has lost a Squib."

John McLean, of Glasgow, has been sentenced to three years' hard labor under the Defence of the Realm Act for prejudicing recruiting, etc. And yet in Germany, Liebnecht is allowed to make the most outspoked statements about the German Government and their conduct of the war. Whether 'British democracy' (whatever the hell that is), will ultimately conquer 'Prussian kultur' is a matter of conjecture, but it is quite evident that British militarism is quite capable of outdoing even the German variety.

At the next election, the Labor Party in N.S.W. is going to have to fight for its life. Petwixt the secession of the Trade Union Party, the petrol scandal, and my own case, their difficulties are going to be many.

If the Quarter Sessions Court uphold the magistrate's decision it will be the duty of all members and sympathisers to flood the Federal Attorney-General and the Minister for Defence with applications for my release. Fellow-worker J. B. King reports excellent-progress from Melbourne, whence he journeyed to place the facts of my case before the unions and the general public. The Melbourne Local, at a recent meeting on the Yarra Bank, collected £1 17s, for the Defence Fund.

The profits of the shipping barons of the Empire have, on an average, been augmented tenfold since the outbreak of war. In the U.S.A. there are 500 additional millionaires as a result of the war. But there is twelve months awaiting anyone for pointing out these undeniable facts.

"One engineer is worth a hundred law-yers" is a trite truth. "One navy is worth more to society than a thousand politicans" is just as true. Workers, arise, understand and appreciate your power, logically and intelligently organised. Down with parasit-ism-and undesirables of all types and de-grees.

The blockheads who held up two issues of in "International Socialist" have allowed the "International Socialist" have allowed one issue to come through after a delay of one month. We wonder how much the Cos-sack Government of Nicolai the Bloody, murderer of the Nevsky Prospect, had to do with the delay. with the delay.

Rally, working men, to the I.W.W. We want you to-day within our ranks. The gigantic work of education is a labor for many hands. It is a work for brave hearts and undying optimism. But it is towards the freedom of the race, towards the consummation of which poets for centuries have sung, and seers have dreamed. Our ranks are open for MEN and WOMEN.

When a man becomes advanced in his ideas or his actions, it is remarkable how soon he loses his fair weather friends. But why worry, for every one you lose you gain the aid and help of men and women who have never seen or heard you, but understand you in the struggle for better and nobler days.

The rise of the I.W.W. in Australia is due solely to the magnificent efforts of the earnest and sincere among the working-class. Within three years we have been able to prove that we are the power of the future. The strength of the masters is, in our weakness, our division. Solidarity is the keystone of the new social order.

A letter from Fellow-worker Fish, who is chairman of the Blackall Strike Committee, tells us that practically all sheds are out on strike in Central Queensland. Conditions will compel the squatters to give in. Strike when you hurt the boss is sound horse-sense.

Don't forget, wobblies, about the concert. The Town Hall must be packed, and that depends on you. I will be delighted to know in Long Bay on the 13th May that the wobblies concert was a success. Rush the tickets and push 'em.

Hundreds of members and sympathisors are sure to come in from the country for the concert. Hence it will be a good idea if a local convention is held for the purpose of accelerating and stimulating propaganda.

Poys, dig in, for your own sake.

57 HOURS-25 BOB.

The following from the Glasgow art" of Feb. 19 is interesting in view of the tall tales going the rounds of the capitalist press as to the high wages paid to munition workers in Great Britain:

On the 10th inst., a man, called Wm. Farbour, applied to the Glasgow Munitions Tribunal for a clearance certificate from Messrs. Stewarts and Lloyds.

"Mr. Coyle, Steelworkers" Union, who appeared on behalf of the applicant, said that the latter was sarning 25s. for a week of 57 hours, whereas he had been offered, a job at 30s. with another firm for a similar working week. For some time Barbour had been able to augment his income through working overtime, but this had been entirely stopped. Barbour had a wife and two 1 dren to provide for.

"Commander Gibson asked if the rates in the district in which the applicant was employed were less than 25s. per week, and a representative of the firm said that that was 30.

"Commander Gibson: Then all I can sav

"Commander Gibson: Then all I can say is that in circumstances such as these it is a scandal. To my mind, these small wages are due to the fact that the laborers are not sufficiently organised.

"If commander Gibson-continues to affront Capitalism like that, he'll get his own Clearance Certificate one of these days. In the meantime, however, he is giving the workers more confidence in the Munitions Tribunal."

A YELLOW STREAK.

There is a picture at present being shown in Sydney called. "The Yellow Streak." The initiated are aware that the term is Yankee slang for a streak of cowardice. One part of the "movie" shows a highwayman declaring that he always made things hot for those who "showed yellow." There may be something in the highwayman's philosophy. The world would be much better off without cowards. But this is not an advertisement for a picture show. There is a point to the story.

cowards. But this is not an advertisement for a picture show. There is a point to the story.

There is a magisterial beak in Sydney who must have seen that picture. An alleged "man" appeared before his beakship a few days ago belonging to an alleged organisation called the "I.W.W., Chub" (no connection with the I.W.W., branged under the War Precautions Act with prejudicing recruiting. The surroundings of a Police Court was evidently too much for this—"man." At all events, he "saw yellow." With a piteous and contemptible whine he pleaded to the beak that he did not belong to the "red raggers" or the "direct action crowd." For this disgusting exhibition of funk he was awarded £100 or six months' hard.

After all, there is something educational about the movies. The writer would never have admitted there was an atom of justice about that sentence had he not spent a humble "tray" on "The Yellow Streak."

What the War has not Changed.

"The war has changed all that " is a frequent expression in the capitalist press of late. It is generally used on occasions when a section of the workers make some demand to maintain the standard of diving existing in prewar days. From the same source we are informed from time to time that labor conditions after the war must inevitably grow worse in view of the "depression" which is bound to set in.

The press is always ready with plausible reasons for working-class poverty. When war is on it is—well, just the war. In peace, it is "depression," "bad times," "lack of capital," etc. These and similar shibboleths are given to us in different guises, by "our" political economists, are repeated parrot-like by Union leaders and Labor politicians, and in time, well interspersed with profetarian oaths, they become indubitable common-places to the wage-slave vainly searching for a job.

The press and the rest of our mentors are very careful not to state that there is one thing which war never changes, which peace never prevents, namely, exploitation. This is a word entirely foreign to their vo-cabulary. Webster, indeed, tells us it is no longer "in use." It has a meaning of its own, however, and its concrete expression is to be found in the fact that in war and in peace, all so-called "good" times are times when labor is more extensively robbed, and that "bad" times are occasions when capitalism, surfeited with a period of blood-sucking, must perforce have a period of somnolence, owing to an overcharged digestion.

To put the matter more clearly, war is a time when there is an exceptional demand upon the agricultural and manufacturing resources of every capitalist nation. It is therefore a "good" time from the capitalist class standpoint, for it is a time when enormous profits are made, and when the war itself can be used as an excuse, by raising the cry of "patriotism," for more extensive exploitation of the worker.

During peace, however, "bad" times are tation of the worker.

During peace, however, "bad" times are characterised by universal unemployment, brought about through the fact that the markets are unable to absorb the commodities which labor has produced, and the workers starve in the midst of a surplus they have created, but do not own. In one word, again—exploitation.

ers starve in the midst of a surplus they have created, but do not own. In one word, again—exploitation.

After the war! however the word "depression" will have a somewhat different meaning. The same labor and the same natural resources that are to-day supplying the economic requirements of the millions of non-producers in Europe will be there, but the class which owns those resources will refuse to utilise them without a profit, which cannot be forthcoming owing to the disbandment of huge armies and the consequent disappearance of a "demand" temporarily created by Governments.

The worker, as is his wont, will be well supplied with the usual stock-in-trade of capitalist economists, so that he may attribute his condition to any cause but the true one. Some will attribute his poverty to natural laxiness, others to drink, others, again, to Labor or Liberal Governments, according to circumstances; over-population, "spots in the sun," the "laws of Divine Providence," and last, but not least, the propagands of the L.W.W., will each in turn bear their share of the blame for the unemployment and destitution which are bound to ployment and described by the consuction of the true reason, however, cannot much longer be conceaded. That reason is, briefly, class ownership of the means of production and the natural resources. This is the one thing which the war has not changed, and will not charge.

The war has not changed the conditions underlying exploitation.

The war has not changed the conditions underlying exploitation.

The war has not changed the fact that there is a class in society which only allows the workers access to the means of production in order to supply their wants, on condition that a substantial surplus is forthcoming for ITS benefit.

The war has not changed the nature of capitalist greed, only in so far as it has intensified it; and it has not changed the fact—so well stated by the Crown Prosecutor in Barker's case that "thorp is a class of people in the community which positive.

tensified it: and it has not changed the fact—so well stated by the Crown Prosecutor in Barker's case that "thore is a class of people in the community, which positive, ly gloats over the slaughter of human becings," so long as there are women and children left to exploit. \( \chi_{\text{three}} \) This state of affairs can only be changed by the WORKING CLASS. Those who are looking towards the war to achieve some psychological miracle with regard to the attitude of the employing class towards exploitation are living in a fool's paradise. In the immortal words of Billy Hughes, when denouncing the I.W.W., "the only a thing that appeals to these people is force." Hughes was right; so are we. All things must give way to force. And the only force which shall sweep the capitalist system into oblivion is that of an industrially organised working class.

This is another great fact which the war has not changed, and all toilers would do well to recognise it.

F.W. # Conscription

Labor Premier Vaughan of South Australia is bleating for conscription. Speaking at a meeting in Adelaide last week, he said, "Australia had promised 300,000 men, and if voluntarism will not get them conscription will." What does Vaughan mean by saying "Australia" has promised. Are Vaughan, Hughes and a few other jingoes "Australia," and are the rest of the people, including the 300,000, mere automatons, to be ordered about by tongue wagging patriots of the Vaughan type, who are themselves too cowardly to place their own precious hides in danger? If these people were really the servants of the Australia, "democracy" they prate about, it would be much more rational, and in keeping with the principles of democracy, if the people of Australia insisted upon those "servants" of theirs doing a little German blood-spilling on their own by way of example. In that case, of course, we would hear less of conscription, and what "Australia" promised. One thing, the members of the LW W. can promise this brigade of Labor traitors, and that is, if ever they are forced by consciption to handle a rifle they will certainly not by at a loss to know where to point it.

That highly patriotic and respectable bedy, the Anstrahan Natives' Association, yould also appear to be anxious to conscript the other fellow. Last week they waited upon the Acting Prime Minister and urged the 'necessity' of compulsion. As the vast majority of the mend ers of the A.N.A. are men of military age, the only conclusion to draw is that they have such a lack of confidence in their own courage that they want to be driven to the murder zone before they go there. But there is another solution. The A.N.A. besides being highly patriotic, is mostly recruited from the ranks of the bourgeoisie. If the property-less wage-plug is not a madly enthusiastic as formerly to shed his blood over the privileges of this class, why he must be "enthused" by conscription—that's all. that's all.

he must be "entinused" by conscription—that's all.

Apropos of the attitude of Labor politicians towards Conscription, the London "Herald" of February 12 has a paragraph which is interesting. It says:—

The Trade Union workers of this country will have to turn their minds very seriously towards the doings of the Trade Union members of Parliament. Especially is this so with the miners. These men are becoming a source of danger and menace to the power and effective usefulness of the Miners Federation of Great Britain. At a special conference of the M.F.G.B., held in London on January 6, a resolution against Conscription was carried by a majority vote of more than half a million. In spite of this vote and the Labor Congress vote in Westminster Weslevan Hall, these men voted in the Illouse of Commons in favor of conscription. When attempts were made to bring them to book, they said they were responsible to their constituents, and not to their Trade Unions. Every member of a Trade Union is expected to conform to the decisions of his Union and honor them with respect. Not so these gentlemen. They arrogate to themselves a specially privileged position. The Miners' Federation is overwhelmingly against Conscription, yet when the motion to repeal the Military Service Act was before the Labor Conference at Bristol, the M.P.G.B. stultified itself by not voting. And this was done out of deferegore to some of these Federation members of Parliament, who held that though the Federation was against Conscription, it had not expressed itself in favor of the repeal of the Compulsion Act, which is sheer nonsense. Not to vote on the repeal of the Act is to acquiesce in its principles, which is absolutely inconsistent with the Conference resolution. On the most vital and important issue ever placed before a Labor Conference, the decision of the workers has been rendered ungatory and abortive largely by the influence of men who had hopelessly compromised themselves by their vote in the House of Commons."

You shall read the scroll of our lives, red-writ, On the night black walls of pain; You shall trace our trails by the gibbet posts Fair memorials of our slain; Where the whited bones,

In dark undertones, Still defy the accursed chain.

In the silent north, where the pinewoods sleep Till they shudder, reel, and crash; Where the miser mountains their hoards reveal At the torrents threat and thrash; We unfurled the flag— Yes, the old red rag, In defiance of law and lash

We obeyed the call of that siren-west, Her deceits we made them plain; For her lovely eyes o'er the skyline peep,
And her lips are sought in vain.
But we sowed the seed,

I.W.W. Preamble.

The working class and the employing class have nothing in common. There can be no peace so long as hunger and want are found among millions of working people, and the few who make up the employing class have all the good things of life.

Between these two classes a struggle must go on until the workers of the world organise as a class, take possession of the earth and the machinery of production, and abolish the

We find that the centreing of the manage We find that the centreing of the management of industries into fewer and fewer hands makes the trade unions unable to, cope with the ever-growing power of the employing class. The trade unions foster a state of affairs which allow one set of workers to be pitted against another set of workers in the same industry, thereby helping to defeat one another in wage-wars. Moreover, the trade unions aid the employing class to mislead the workers into the belief that the working-class have interests in common with their emhave interests in common with their

These conditions can be changed and the These conditions can be changed and the interests of the working-class upheld only by an organisation formed in such a way that all its members in any one industry, or in all industries, if necessary, cease work whenever a strike of lockout is on in any department thereof, thus making an injury to one an injury to all,

Instead of the conservative motto: "A fair day's wages for a fair day's work," we must inscribe on our banner the revolutionary watchword: "Abolition of the wage system." It is the historic mission of the working-class to do away with Capitalism. The army of production must be organised, not only for the everyday struggle with capitalists, but also to carry on production when Capitalists, but also to carry on production when Capitalists, but also to carry on production when Capitalism shall have been overthrown. By organising industrially, we are forming the structure of the new society within the shell of the old.

The "Worker" and Meredith' & The Steel Trust Great Britain, Slowing Down.

The following appeared in the "Australian Worker" of April 13:—
F. G. Ayres, of South Australia, seems to be greatly perturbed because "The Worker," in a recent article, took N.S.W. Assistant Railway Commissioner Milne to task for lecturing some of his employees when they had the temerity to protest, against speeding-up.

for lecturing some of his employees when they had the temerity to protest, against speeding-up.

F. G. Ayres sees I.W.W. ism in 'The Worker's' remarks; and the hideous hologobins of sabotage seem to torment his placid soul.

But F. G. Ayres needn't worry. This paper hasn't; and never did have, any faith in sabotage. It realises that, under the present system of society, if the workers by slowing down increase the cost-of production tion they have to pay in a mathematical ratio, buy back cheaper the increased prices for the commodities they so produce.

In that respect sabotage—under capital-ism—approximates to a dog chasing its own tail.

In that respect sabotage—under capitalism—approximates to a dog chasing its own tail.

But this paper also realises that by speeding-up, and so cheapening production, the workers will not, in the same mathematical ratio, buy back cheaper-the commodities they have more cheaply produced.

If they did, they would be luxuriating in abundance to-day. The cost of lving would be diminishing instead of increasing. The savings banks would be full to overflowing with the wage-earners' savings.

For machinery and modern methods have cheapened production almost beyond calculation. One man to-dey, with the aid of machinery, can do the work of, say, 20 men 50 years ago. Yet he isn't 20 times better off. He is still getting a "living wage." The difference in production goes to the machine-owning class, and to the appropriators in general of surplus values.

Working at a normal rate the workers have produced almost more excess wealth than the world knows how to squander. They have produced so much that they are always in the shadow of unemployment caused by gluts, in other words, by overproduction—coupled, of course, with underconsumption on the part of the over-producers.

Why, then, should the workers commit industrial suicide by speeding-up, and so bringing the shadow of unemployment closer!

Oser i The contention that the I.W.W. argues on somewhat similar lines, in some matters, to those adopted by "The Worker," needn't be denied.

For all working-class parties have much in common, inasmuch as they are antagonistic to capitalism. Their principles are largely identical, though the chosen methods of putting these principles into effect may vary greatly.

greatly.

No sensible man would affirm, because the I.W.W. believes in the One Big Union idea and the economic education of the working-class, that both these beliefs are necessarily wrong. If he did he might just as logically affirm that eating food or wearing clothes is wrong because I.W.W. members eat the one and wear the other.

But they the men who affirmed that the gentleman famous in Australian history at Yes-No Reid. The "Worker" has "no faith" in sabotage, as defined by "slowing down", yet its objections to "speeding up" are incofitrovertible. Presumably, the "Worker" has worked out to its own satisfaction the difference between deliberate resistance to speeding up and an organised attempt to slow down. It makes no effort, however, to define that difference. We are not informed at what particular stage in the history of capitalist production an increased output, or "speeding up," became an evil, nor, on the other hand, are we told when and how the antidote to that evil, in other words, slowing down, "approximates to a dog chasing its own tail." The "Worker" has no faith in slowing down, and then inconsistently asks "why the workers should commit industrial suicide by speeding up!" Dear, oh dear, what IS the matter with the "Worker's' logic! Has its fright at the little word "sabotage" run away with its reasoning faculties, or have the Ayres, and the Vaughans, and other conscriptionists, got'such a hold of its policy that "backing and filling" are preferable to the elementary principles of deductive reason?

Don't speed up; don't alow down"; such is "Worker's' advice. It has struck upon

A certain amount of robbery is justifiable, but any extension of this robbery is unjustifiable. Resist the latter and you are safely within the borders of "law and order" unionism as represented by the A.W.U., but attempt to subvert the "happy medium" of robbery—that is sabotage, a word not mentioned in respectable labor circle. otage, a wor labor circles.

"Bent Axle" writes from Scarborough:—
Meredith Atkinson journeyed down here to lecture to the slaves on the "Incoming of Machinery," on Wednesday, 5th inst. It was in the form of a lantern lecture, and was, held in the school. The esteem in which Meredith and his doctrine are held could be plainly observed when one took a glance found the audience, which was made up of about 70 per cent. school children.

The first few slides depicted the layers of the "roundation of the British Empire." The first slide, which was one of actual interest to the slaves, was one picturing the CredleyHeath chainmakers at work in their sweat slops, and here the lecturer laid stress upon shops, and here the lecturer laid stress unon the fact of such damnable conditions being allowed to prevail, which he described as ta-ing simply hellish. He then told the audi-ence that the reason he was so conversant with this maver was that he had been one with this mareer was that he had been one of a Commission appointed to investigate into the workers' conditions there. The speaker informed his audience that the chainmakers were receiving 5s. 9d. per week of 79 hours prior to the Commission sitting.

The finding of the Commission was that wages were to be increased to 11s. 6d. per week of 53 hours. Ye Gods! He further remarked, in case of wages being increased three of fourfold, or a further reduction in hours given, it would in all probability have crippled the industry. It is quite apparent that this Messiah of the working class would sooner cripple the slaves of Cradley Heath than the industry. One very vital point that Meredith omitted to mention was the profits which were being wrung from the chainmakers.

The speaker admitted that through the chainmakers.

The speaker admitted that through the introduction of machinery times of depression were often the let of the workers, but went on further to say that the advent of the machine was a boon, in so far as it cheapened production considerably, thereby causing a greater demand for the machine-made article, which, naturally, through time, absorbed the unemployed caused by the machine's introduction. So, according to Meredith's theory, any of you wage-plugs who happen to be scrapped per the introduction of a machine, just hang round and live oa hay for a time, and through the cheaper production and greater demand, which Meredian and greater demand.

tion of a machine, just hang round and hive on hay for a time, and through the cheaper production and greater demand, which Meredith claims is sure to follow, you will get a job in the sweet by and bye.

I might state here that Meredith informed the slaves that there were about five different solutions claiming to solve, the question of over-production, but as time was valuable to the speaker he did not care to enter into the discussion of any of them, seeing there were present at the lecture advocates of the slow-down policy.

Workers, beware of Meredith and his doctrine. There is only one logical solution to over-production, and that is slowing down on the job. Produce less and make the job last longer. Fast workers die young. Get wise to the I.W.W., the one and only instructive and educational working class organisation in Australia.

It amounts simply to saying, "increased output means increased prosperity," and can be rebutted by the plain facts of industrial history. The "Worker," however, tells us that an in-crease in production means increased poverty and a decrease in production means ditto— which is simply a contradiction in terms and a reversal of the laws of logic.—T.G.

In future a monthly Bulletin will be issued to locals on the lines of the American Bulletin. From various causes the organisation was in a very bad state back in October last, chiefly owing to the apathy of the G.E.B., the general officials and the members themselves. At the end of October an emergency meeting was called and the whole organisation overhauled. New G.E.B. and officials were appointed, the existing locals rallied quickly to the financial call, and except for the very heavy burden of finance incurred before the re-organisation the British I.W.W. would be in an exceedingly good position when compared with the past. If the members will institute a self-denial week and pay in a small sum each as a donation our debts could be wiped off, literature issued, and the organisation would go chead rapidly. It is only the financial debt that burdens us, as our membership is stronger than it ever was, and thousands of workers up against the system generally, and militarism in particular, are eagerly waiting to hear of an organisation that will unite them as a class, and fight everyday battles where the masters and military can be hit.

The Relation of the I.W.W. to Recent Strikes

By ALEX. GEORGE.

"I do not know what is coming over the acciety. If you look back over the past lew months you will find that the engineering societies have figured in a large number or strikes—many of them brought about over mere trifles

I have endeavored to get to the bottom of things, and the conclusion I have come to is that the men who hold the i.W.W. principles are to blame.

It is a well known fact that we have them in my society, a number of whom are in a position to influence their workmates, both in the workshop and meetings. The above is, in part, the statement of an

The above is, in part, the statement of an A.S.E. member to a 'Herald' representative in reference to the strike of engineers which took these at Eveleigh workshops last week. The capitalist press have been publishing statements of a similar tone scores of times during this past few months. In a leading article dealing with the Evenigh strike, the Herald' truly says: "The whole trouble is that Labor will not trust its leaders."

This is certainly very lamentable, i.e., from the standpoint of the "Herald," as the mouthpiece of the exploiter and professional trades union official.

The number of strikes and other manifestations of the class struggle, always brought about by the militant minority, and in opposition to the authority of trades union executives, which have lately occurred throughout Australia, is undoubtedly a great encouragement to the I.W.W. propagaia dist. It clearly reflects the increasing distrust of the rank and file with their leaders, and a consciousness of their own power to determine their own job conditions, as opposed to the antiquated and worthless methods of termine their own for conditions, as pipesed to the antiquated and worthless methods of arbitration and conciliation. When asked by the "Herald" representative as to why stops were not taken to get rid of I.W.W. influences in the union, the A.S.E. patriot remarks "That it was easier said than done. These men wield great influence, and it an open vote is taken, and you declare against a cessation of work, you are a marked man. To be marked in a large workshop is not to be desired, so I, and others of my opinion.

to be desired, so I, and others of my opinion-avoid being present when votes are taken (always the stand taken by the crawlers and pimps of the master class), and the recalci-trants, who are never absent when trouble is 'rrawing (when they see a favorable oppor-tunity of bettering their conditions, pimps) outvote the remainder."

Industrial Unionists certainly do wield great influence on the job, because of the fact that they clearly demonstrate that there is a class war in society between the pro-pertyless wage-workers, producing all is a class war in society between the propertyless wage-workers, producing all wealth, and their masters, the expliciters, who appropriate to themselves that wealth, returning to labor just sufficient (on the average) to supply it in food, clothing and shelter. Because they expound this, and other economic truths in a forcible and convincing manner to their workmates on the job, and show that it is on the job where their exploitation and enslavement occurs, and point out that the only way to diminish and abolish this exploitation is by the direct action of the workers themselves, is the reason that they wield great influence.

The I.W.W. teaches that as soon as the mass of the workers start to think for themselves, of the workers start to think for themselves, instead of allowing delegates to do it for them, it logically follows that they will know how to act for themselves. It is now openly admitted from all sources that the I.W.W. is a power in the Labor movement of this country.

Much more so than its members would in-

Much more so than its members would indicate. However, the influence of any movement cannot be judged by numbers.

What really counts is the knowledge possized by that movement and disseminated amongst the mass of the people, the class of members and the militant spirit adopted by the membership. Herein lies the success of the Industrial Workers of the World.

Its propaganda has been clear and to the point, with all side issues cut out.

by the parasite class, including their lieutenants, the labor politician and trades union fakir.

It must not be overlooked, however, that small sectional strikes, in which a small part or craft in a large industry ceases work, perhaps for weeks, or months, thereby depriving themselves of their regular wage, are not the actual tactics of the Industrial Unionist. He believes in remaining on the job, to strike on the job, and use any and all tactics while there, to cause the greatest amount of loss and injury to the employer. It may take the form of all, or part of the workers involved, engaging in a "slow-down strike"; or in the case of workers employed in workshops and mines, by the scientific dislocation of machinery. We welcome these numerous strikes of machinery. tion of machinery.

We welcome these numerous strikes though, because of their educational value, in so far as they have a tendency to show to the workers the power they possess, if only properly organised.

The I.W.W. points the way. It emphasises the point that in order to have a thoroughly aggressive labor organisation ready at all times to wage the class war for the gaining of better contilions of life and more control of industry. control of industry, the workers must or-anise in the One Big Union, scientificative grouped according to the industry in which they work, or the commodity produced. The advantages of the industrial form, with its they work, or the commonty product. The advanteges of the industrial form, with its accompanying up-to-date tactics, as opposed to the craft, should be evident to every thinking worker. In the first place, the slaves' only power and possession is his labor, which is a commondity. But it differs from other commondities in the sense that it can be withdrawn from the labor market, or applied on the job in an unprofitable way for the boss, thereby raising its value. Now, commonsense, should tell as that the most scientific method of controlling our labor-power is by Industrial Unionism.

The workers can at present gain many concessions from the owners of industry, but when times of industrial depression appear they are generally again lost because no sound economic organisation is behind the workers to hold that which they previously enforced.

workers to hold that which they previously enforced.

The I.W.W. place before the workers a sound, instructive programme of organisation by industry, linked up into one Big Union of wage-workers of all countries. By such a method, all craft and other divisions are broken down, and in cases in which a certain section of the workers are up against the boss, or agitators gaoded, instead of the particular craft waging the class war alone, we would have the whole of the members in that industry, or in all, if necessary rallying to their aid. That is why Barker, as the publisher of 'Direct Action,' which places these facts before the workers, and advocates the complete abolition of capitalism, by and through International Industrial Unionism, and the carrying on of production by these same unions in the intervests of all society, was recently sentenced to 12 months hard labor.

Not, for the reason that the statements, which is the proposition of the prospection of the proposition of the present that the statements, which is the proposition of the p ests of all society, was recently sentenced to 12 months hard labor.

Not, for the reason that the statements, published four months ago, were likely to prejudice recruiting. Not necessarily, because the powers that be were, determined to get Barker, and Parker alone, but they believed, that in getting hint, as the publisher of the official organ, that the movement and the paper as its intellectual expression would be compelled to modify its propaganda, or be put of out of business.

Ah, yes, they have Barker convicted for the present. But are you militant members of the working class going to lie down like keep him behind the prison bars? It rests with you, yourselves, to determine what acton you are prepared to take during the

with you, yourselves, to determine what acton you are prepared to take during the next few weeks to gain Barker's freedom, whipped curs and allow the authorities to and having done that you have accomplished your own freedom and that of the labor press, to criticise any political measure fastened on to the workingclass of this country.

press, to criticise any pointical measure instead on to the workingclass of this country.

Do you note that, you militant workers of the Barrier.

The authorities knew what action you were prepared to take a few weeks ago to see that A.M.A. Secretary Barnett, as publisher of your official paper, was not placed in a prison cell. The powers that be oventually withdrew that prosecution, for they realised that they were up against a greater economic power than their own. So if you have the same militant spirit now as you loss government that you are prepared to take the same stand in Barker's case, as you did in Barnett's, then Barker must be released, and the ruling class, who ordered this iniquitous War Precaution Act to be placed on the Statute Book will be given another slap in the face as demonstrated by working class solidarity.

The human animal is a biological phenomenon. It is mainly carnivorous: it has the advantage of speech over the so-called lower forms of life: it can produce its economic wants in abundance, and then walk around starving. The human animal is the only animal that will sterve in the midst of plenty. It will dress its own species in gaudy inner, address them in high-flown language, cringe, crawl, and lickspittle to them, sweat and bullock to keep them in idlness and luxury, and will tolerate insults from the parasitical human animal. #### BROKEN HILL LOCAL.

The above Logal wishes it to be announced through "Direct Action." that there is room for one or two good "soap-boxers" at the Hill. Jobs are plentiful, and I.W.W. propaganda at the present time can be sent ahead by a couple of efficient speakers.

Don't forget that all Efficiency and Speeding-up schemes are put forward in the interests of the boss. You and he have nothing in common.
