Current Comment. Sydney Notes. A General Strike

Farmers and Settlers' Association has joined the Universal Slaughter League in a At the discussion which took place on the subject dissatisfaction was expressed at the fact of "young boys" going to the front while adults were allowed to remain at home. Young boys, if questioned on the subject, would perhaps infinitely prefer the treuches to the life which "Cocky" has in his mind's eye for them. A plentiful supply of chap juvenile labor has always been cocky's ideal, so the F. and S.A. The Orange Lodge had its annual turn-out last week. The "Grand Master," after expressing the usual charitable Christian sentiments toward his Roman Catholic brethren, told his hearers that "while we honored God the Em-pire would live, but once we came to the conclusion that we could live without Him the Empire would fall to pieces." We do not pre-tend to know the source of his "Worshipful's" information, but, anybow, if God takes the Empire under his wing there will be no need for Conscription. Archbishop Wright, please

Now, we shan't be long. The Labor Gov-ernment proposes to send a Commission to the United States "to investigate and report upon the methods of manufacture and produc-tion in that 'country." Six representatives from the bosses and six from the unions are to constitute the Commission. The "Unionism" which investigates the best schemes for the production of Surplus Value, in other words, est method of robbing the workers, should soon land us in the promised millennium.

We are not long being left in doubt as to the object of the Coal Lumpers' Battalion re-cently formed with the aid and consent of the officials of the Coal Lumpers' Union. Referring to the possibility of a Wharf Laborers' strike in Melbourne, Sydney "Herald," of July

"It is possible that if a crisis occurs the Ministry may give consideration to the ques-tion of extending the scope of the recently-formed Coal Lumpers' Battalion, so as to embrace all waterside workers, as is the case in the Dockers' Battalion, which has been formed in all the principal ports of Great Britain, with a view to ensuring that the business of the country shall not be interfered with by strikes or industrial disturbances during the

The "husiness of the country" is the "Herald's" polite phraseology for Masters' profits. How easily the coal lumpers have fallen into the trap set by the Labor Government and their scabby officials.

The Trade Union press of Australia is inclined to view Billy Hughes' purchase of a few out-of-date tramp steamers as "an instal-ment of practical Socialism." No doubt this brand of Socialism has been exceedingly "practical" for Billy. Neither should the ship owners who sold the steamers have any fault to find with it. With news of under-water cargo vessels, fitted with Diesel engines, already appearing, one forsees Billy's purchase on the scrap-heap in the near future. Apart from this aspect of the question, the idea of this kind of State Capitalism (borrowing in order to buy) being described as Socialism of any kind is worthy only of the economic freaks whose absurdities find expression in the Labor press. When it is further rememthe Labor press. When it is turther remem-bered that the crews of those vessels will be obliged to slave under the dehumanistic con-ditions prevalent in the British Mercantile Marine the workers should fervently pray to be saved from Billy's "Socialism."

Briefly, the reason for unemployment is that there are not enough jobs to go around. What about a shorter work-day

An excuse to introduce cheap labor is at the bottom of the Conscription campaign.

THE BARKER CASE.

Sydney Domain meeting on Sunday was largely attended and highly successful from a propaganda standpoint. The forces, of "law and order"-military and police-were present ers perhaps never before seen in the Domain, but they were never less needed, for although some thirty or forty thousand people were present the crowds were most orderly.

were present the crowds were most order.

The amountement made by Fellow-worker Grant from the LW.W. platform that TomBarker would be once more to the fore at our Domain meeting next Sunday fortnight, was received enthusiastically by the thousands assembled round the speaker.

The announcement of the collectionaid of a suggested propaganda tour by Barker on his release from gaol-was generously responded to, over twelve pounds being col-

References were made by the various speakers—King, Grant, and Glynn—to the Labor Government's treatment of Barker, and if the reception which the remarks received are to be taken as an indication, the writing is un-mistakably on the wall for the future of the Labor Party insofar as it claims to represent the workers' interests.

If the suggested tour is undertaken by Barit will add fuel to the flames of discontent already simmering, and have the effect of carrying the One Big Union message to the hearts of workers previously chloroformed by the political quacks.

The persecution and tyranny to which the I.W.W. has been subjected at the hands of Labor Governments, particularly in the case of Barker, will yet be the means of gathering thousands of wage-slaves under the bannerfolds of Revolutionary Unionism.

MORE "PRAISE."

Thus the Townsville (Q.) "Daily Bulle-

"Mr. E. C. Theodore, Acting Premier, once the burly champion of workers' demands, now entrenched in snug, well-paid power and office, has pronounced a terrible philliple against those anarchists, the Industrial Shirkers of the World. Many will be surprised at Mr. Theodore's indignation. So unsound a student of political economy should realise that the inevitable processes of labor evolu-tion demand that new leaders shall "go one better." Mr. Theodore, especially when in op-position, claimed every support both moral and divine for strikers. Whoseever struck was right. Now having burst his births invidious bar and achieved eminence, the one time demagogue fercely assalls the newer demagogue combination. But the Industrial Shirkers' point triumphantly to results ob-tained. The Australian Workers' Union wished to observe—"the scrap of paper" until the expiry of the pastoral workers' agreement. The I.S.W. jumped in, inaugurated a strike, and scored a victory. The same combination precipitated the recent meatworks trouble, hung up boats and trains, and again one, nung up boats and trains, and again scored "improved conditions." This is a ter-rible state of things. The Irregular Forces of Industrialism , successfully charging the capitalistic entrenchments and dragging the reluctant and humiliated officers of establish ed unions, reduced to mere camp followers, after them. Already we see a "lot of Sydney blokes" from the Domain, ousting Mr. Theo-dore, Mr. Fihelly and Co., from their high and honorable offices. No doubt, Mr. Theodore sees it too, and hence the vigor of his com munique; the force of his language and the ardor of his defence of the existing blissful order of things."

We are duly grateful to the "Bulletin" for its tribute of praise, though to accuse us of its tribute of praise, though to accuse us of aspiring to the politician's job takes the cream off, somewhat. "Shirkers." "Anarchists," "pro-Germans"—anything you like—but don't call us Politicians for the love of Mary. There is a limit to everything.

AGAINST CONSCRIPTION.

In a few days now W. M. Hughes will be back from his little joint to Europe (by the way, when are you going for YOUR Continental tour?), and the chances are that he will have a mandate from the British Government to bring in conscription. Now, what are you going to do about it? Speaking recently at a labor league meeting, Holman said, "The issue of conscription will not be settled by the P.L.L., this government or the Federal Government, but by the Imperial Govern-ment." For months past the capitalistic press has been howling for conscription, and has repeatedly asserted that Hughes, when he re-turned, would have the courage to bring it in So it seems almost a certainty that this Labor traitor, fresh from the fulsome praise of kings, presidents, dukes, war lords, money-bugs, and other parasites, will endeavor to carry out the orders of his financial masters, and enforce this worst form of slavery-scription—upon the workers.

It cannot be repeated too often that con-scription is wanted, not for military service for the duration of the war, as the Universal Service League would have us believe, but for industrial slavery: On the admission of Senator Pearce, if we had conscription no more men could be sent away than are being sent at present. Nor is it for the manufacture of munitions that it is wanted, the British Government having just stated that they do not require any munitions from Australia. So it must be plain that the real reason why they want conscription is to more effectually carry on their industries.

The workers of Australia have just about woke up to the fact that Arbitration is effec-tive only for the boss and damned foolishness for them; they are reverting more and more to the strike and direct action, so the em-ployers need a more effective weapon. That weapon is Industrial Conscription. Workers on the Clyde have been deported or driven back to work when they dared to revolt against the hellish conditions under the speeding up system. Only last week some 5,500 working men who had struck in the shipyards Barrow-in-Furness were forced back to their tasks at the point of the bayonet.

This, fellow workers, is industrial conscrip-These, and worse things which the papers do not mention, are happening in Great Britain, under the slave Conscription Act. Are you going to stand for similar conditions

A little more than a week ago we had a fine exhibition of what military domination means. Men, supposed to be free, thought to be living in a free country, a country which sup-posedly guarantees them freedom of opinion and also freedom to express that opinion, went into the Sydney Domain with the object of protesting against conscription. T fore they could utter a sentence, they were ore they could utter a sentence, they were mobbed and pulled from the platform by a crowd whose weak minds, had been inflamed by junkeristic utterances, and distorted by a war-crazed and perverted press. This in a country which proclaims to the world that it is flighting for freedom, fighting to put down

For the sake of all we hold dear, for the sake of what few liberties we have—liberties hard-won by our forefathers—is it not time we awoke to the danger before it is too late? Once you allow this form of slavery to be enforced—a form of slavery more terrible, possibly, than any in the world's history—you are doomed and damned!

Arise! Organize! What about the General Strike. Tell this gang of labor traitors that the moment they try and enforce conscription just that moment will the wheels of industry cease to turn. (The power is in your own hands. You must choose, and choose quickly between real freedom and real slavery. Which is it to he? Think! Act!! Do Organize! What about the General Which is it to be? Think! Act!! Do

TOM O'CONNOR.

Looking Ahead.

A letter published in one of the Sydney "day-lies," written apparently by a Chinese, is strong in its approval of a proposal to establish in the Sydney University a course of Eastern languages to aid the development of commercial relations between Australia, and Eastern countries, Reference is made to China and Japan becoming the best cus-tomers for Australia's products and the advantages of facilitating commerce with its tendency to remove misunderstandings and prejudice, all of which sounds very nice to capi-talistic ears with its suggestion of increased exploitation

Truly the battle is not always to the strong or the race to the swift. The unsleeping cunning of the capitalistic few who are ever scheming to retain supremacy not only now, but in the distant future, gives them an enormous pull over the fooled and toiling multitude who seem to grope blindly into every pit-fall prepared for them.

'Go Slow.'

The I.W.W. died in Australia some time ago. At least we have been more than once so informed by labor politicians in the past three years. The attention, however, which has been paid to its "corpse" in the same period is newhat extraordinary. First Hughes, then Holman, and now Theodore, shrick so wildly that one imagines they must have seen the ghost of the "dead 'un." Then some alleged labor papers—which from time to time have also assisted at the obsequies of the I.W.W. would appear lately to have reached the con-clusion that "even the dead speaketh." And all the trouble is because part of the

I.W.W. propaganda is to teach the worker that if he is more careful of his spine his brain is likely to have a better chance to de-velop. With this particular contention neither velop. With this particular contention neither the "labor" politicians nor the "labor" papers deal. Brisbane "Daily Standard" of July 7, for instance, has over a column of a leading article on the subject of "going slow," or what it calls "Anarchic Recrudescence," but after reading it carefully one is left in the dark as to where the "Standard" really stands in the matter. Windy word-spinning is not as likely matter. Windy word-spinning is not as likelyto be as effective with the worker as his own experience on the job.

The "Australian Worker" of last week is at all events more specific. "Going slow is harder work than speeding up," we are baidly told. "It takes more out of the man who sticks to it of set purpose than the worst slave driving could do." All of which makes one regret that a short apprenticeship at the business end of a pick is not set down as part of the training of a labor journalist. The logical inference, however, to be drawn from the remarks of both the "Standard" and the "Worker" is that speeding-up is really a bless-ing in disguise. If going slow is not justifi-able then resistance to speeding-up—which is able then resistance to speeding-up-which is only another expression for going slow—is equally unjustifiable. To condemn speeding-up-has become quite an orthodox gospel in "respectable" labor circles, but call a spade a spade, in other words, use the simple mono-syllables "go slow," and you become "unscien-tific" in the eyes of the polite "Worker," while the intellectual (?» scribe on the "Standard" shrieks "anarchy." shrieks "anarchy." The Slow Down propaganda is not put for ward by the I.W.W., notwithstanding as-tions to the contrary, as a cure all for economic evils of Capitalism. Philosophisms, as the "Worker" does, about the "tendency of human nature to do the best of which it is capable," is out of blace in economic warfare. As well try to preach the gospel of brotherly love in the trenches amidst a hail of shells. Modern me thods of exploitation are weapons which stifle the physical, economic, and social develop-ment of the worker, and it would be a queer brand of "human nature" that, instead of re brand of "auman nature" char, instead of re-sisting would endeavour to make exploitation more easy. The Go Slow poll:y has ever been unconsciously practised as one me-thod of resistance, and to raise this natural instinct of the worker to resist exploitation to a consciousness of the why and wherefore is not one of the least important missions of the I.W.W

Surplus Value is the foundation stone of Capitalism. Something more than arbitration courts and wages boards—in which the "Worker" appears to have such child-like faith Capitalism.

—will be required to remove it. Any and every method which strikes a blow at Surplus Value is justifiable. The "go-slow" policy, it one may judge from the howls of exploiters and the whines of their loyal henchmen, the labor politicians, is by no means the least ineffective.

The "Worker" and the "Standard," if they want to keep in line with economic develop-ment and its reflex action on the minds of the projetariat, will have to get off their philo-sophic perches and talk to the worker in the language he understands.

The Pastoral Strike.

OFFICIAL TREACHERY OF THE A.W.U.

The present trouble in the pasteral indus-The present trouble in the pastoral indus-try is worthy of more than passing notice for the reason that A.W.U. officials would appear to be working hand in glove with the squatters in order to defeat the pastoral workers in their just demands. This same combination was recently opposed to the Queensland shearers and shed-hands, but in spite of the oft reiterated determination of the squatters to fight the matter to a finish, and the un-scrupulous tactics of the A.W.U. officials; who openly and coverly encouraged scabbing under Union protection, a victory was gained by the men in those districts where something ap-men in those districts where something ap-proaching solidarity was displayed.

It seems, however, that "those whom the gods would destroy they first make made."

In face of the lesson which the Queensland strike has taught, the A.W.U. in its official capacity still fights its own members, and declares its loyalty to its sacred contract with the bosses—a contract signed nearly five years ago, a time when the prices of the necessities of life were in the neighbourhood of 75 per cent, lower than at the present day. Not alone are the officials merely content with taking up a passive attitude towards the strike. Organisers and other tools of the executive are moving about the strike districts addressing meetings and drawing woeful pictures of the manner in which the strike is endangering the new award looked for in Oc-tober next. One of the tall tales being told in order to induce the strikers to scab their own job is that if work is resumed the award own job is that if work is resumed the award will be made retrospective and will include even higher rates than those now being demanded. Some of these boss officials, apparently, are not alone in the squatters' confidence, but also in that of the Arbitration Court Judge.

The whole thing, besides being a fresh example of the treachery of the type of Union official who desires to stand well in the eyes of the boss, is a standing condemnation of the principle of Arbitration. The spectacle of union officials going into a court and selling union officials going into a court and selling the slaves under their control for a period of five years without regard to any rise in the price of commodities that may meanwhile take place, is serious enough for the workers concerned, but when we find the latter, on conditions becoming intolerable, obliged to fight not only their exploiters but their own officials whom they pay to serve them, it is high time stock was taken of the "One Big Union" principle a la A.W.U.

Union principle a la A.W.U.

The logical evolution of unionism of this type is a system in which the workers would bind themselves down to the master class for eternity, as well as 1,24, ing members of their own class to forge the

An organisation with the membership of An organisation with the membership of the A.W.U. could be a powerful factor in up-lifting the workers of Australia. Instead of that it is at pragent being used for the scabby purpose of downing every attempt at better-ing the conditions of its own membership.

"THERE IS LACK OF ORGANISATION

SOMEWHERE"

A "Builder's Labourer" writes:-Allow me space in your most valuable paper to put a few facts concerning two rival un-ions, namely, the United Laborers and Federated Builders' Laborers. We, the Federated Builders' Labourers, have an award which en-titles us to 44 hours a week and twelve shil-lings a day. The United Laborers work alonsdie our men for ten shillings and 48 hours, ery often doing the same class of work. If this is not trade union scabbery I want to know what is scabbing. It seems to me the "United Laborer" must think himself inferior to a Builders' Laborer.

There is lack of organisation somewhere. Of course we know Trade Unions permit one another to scab on another set of workers in the same industry.

There are times when the bosses are almost human-when they are dead.

The best way to get a reputation for honesty-never get caught.

Conditions in England.

INDUSTRIAL UNIONISM. THE WAY OUT.

Writing to a Sydney member of the Liquor Trades Federation from England, a one-time well-known member of that organisation throws an interesting sidelight, on Industrial conditions in the "old dart." He says:—

As an old member of the Liquor Trades Federation, I would just like to put a few points before the members for their consideration in respect to the changes that are taking place here, mainly through the war now rag-ing. Old traditions, customs, usages, that seemed absolutely unshiftable are swept aside and have become a relic of the past.

Has not the earnest worker for progress in the union movement found that the greatest obstacle has been the men who considered themselves skilled workers in some particular trade, such as the engineers, etc.? The wall tradé, such as the engineers, etc.? The wall protecting their union was as high as the American tariff; they went so far as to call their work a profession—it sounded better. Even rules prohibiting the unskilled worker Even rules prohibiting the unskilled worker from the position of a skilled man existed in some places. They were forced to seek a separate union. But what a change to-day. The agitator, as a worker earnest in his desire for progress, pointed out unceasingly the danger of craft unionism on such lines, but he was unheeded by many. To-day, though, in this country the machine is doing the skilled artisan's work, and is being operated by unskilled male and female labour. The skilled mechanic rave up the privileges he held unskilled male and female labour. The skill-ed mechanic gave up the privileges he held to the master-class, for the object, it is assert-ed, of winning the war. Anyway, they are gone, and, to cut it short, they are gone forever, and it is now seen that unionism is a failure unless it embraces all workmen, whether skilled or unskilled Speeding-up has been introduced into Eag-land—it also has come to stay. As to the Brewery and Mineral trade, it is in a very disorganised state here in the West of Engdisorganised state here in the West of Eng-land. The prevailing rate of pay for brewery workers is—in-Bristol—at the big breweries from 21s, to 26s, per week for 10 hours a day, and that with the price of food as high, if not higher, than in Sydney. . . The mineral water trade is in, a worse state. It is a job to preach the unpopular doctrine of discontent to the already overworked work-ers; but slowly and surely they are becom-ing convinced that the bettering of their own conditions is a thing that can only be accom-plished by themselves . . . Female labour is to a great extent used in most factories; girls that ought to be at school, you will find doing most dangerous work—bottling, corking, crowning. When you hear of the conditions prevailing don't feel that they will never wake from their slumber, for I may tell you that over a quarter of a million have joined some union or other since the war started—a sign of the times. It is only by being taught the advantages of organisation that they will realise their position and how to alter it.

One other matter I would like to mention is that in the Federation there is quite a number of members who were born in Ireland or are of Irish parentage. I know this from are of Irish parentage. I know this from working with them, and I know in these dark days how their eyes and thoughts are turned towards their old land, and they wonder if the wrongs that the workers have suffered there will ever be righted. In a lot of the papers it is asserted that the start and plot-ting of the rebellion was caused by Germans and German agents. I think we do the now and derman agents. I think we do the now dead rebels a great injustice. Don't mistake my position and the views I hold. I have come in contact with some who preach the doctrine of physical force in Ireland, and I have warned them it is a mistaken policy and sure to lead them to destruction. Just as sure as it will lead those of you in Australia that advocate a citizen army-

When the workers are in revolt against When the workers are in revolt against tyrannous conditions you are the members of the clitzen army. Will you take sides against the members of another union? No, you will help with your old and obsolete arms the revolting workers; you will be regarded as rebels and shot down by the capitalsts' military thugs armed with all the modern weather the state of the state o tary thugs armed with all the modern wea-pons of destruction. The doctrine of a citi-zen army will lead where it led the sincere but misguided Irishmen. Not by bloodshed but by the most-effective method of organisa-tion will the world's workers secure their

I suppose you are aware conscription is in I suppose you are aware conscription is in force in England. Men between the ages of 18 and 41 have to serve. In about 20 days—about June 11—all men have to report for service. I am among the number. A clause in the bill granting exemption to conscientious objectors is not being carried out by the tribuinals appointed. I shall appear before them and state my objection.

I have no doubt my appeal will be dismissed.

Well, I shall not shirk from what I believe to be my duty.

I did not want to mention this, only I see ef-forts are being made to bring Conscription in there, and I don't want 'to workers of Australia faced with the position as we here. The Capitalist class are the same as we here. The Capitalist class are the same in every country, be it Germany, England, or Australia; they have and worship the same

This may be the last letter I shall be able. This may be the last letter I shall be able, to write to you. To the members I would say: Our object in life is to make this world all the bejter for our living in it; to make the conditions not only better for ourselves, but for those who come after us. This is a duty we owe to the conling race. Our thoughts, actions, and time should be for that purpose. What is the grab for place and power com-pared to being true to one's convictions. It some suffer in the cause, then it should spur us on to greater effort. Make your union what you want it to be; it is in your hands your conditions the same—and with the desire that first spurred you on to seek the fellow-ship of other workers, you will sweep into oblivion all the fossil remains and rotten tra-ditions of an outlived and useless system.

I.W.W. Preamble.

The working class and the employing class have nothing in common. There can be no peace so long as hunger and want are found among millions of working people, and the few among millions of working people, and the few who make up the employing class have all the good things of life.

Between these two classes a struggle must go on until the workers of the world organise as a class, take possession of the earth and the machinery of production, and abolish the wage system

We find that the centreing of the manage-ment of industries into fewer and fewer hands makes the trade unions unable to cope with makes the trade unions unable to cope with the ever-growing power of the employing class. The trade unions foster a state of affairs which allow one set of workers to be pitted against another set of workers in the same industry, thereby helping to defeat one another in wage wars. Moreover, the trade unions aid the employing class to mislead the workers into the balter that the working class have interests in common with their employers.

These conditions can be changed and the interests of the working-class upheld only by an organisation formed in such a way that all its members in any one industry, or in all industries, if necessary, cease work whenever a strike or lockout is on in any department thereof, thus making an injury to one an injury to all.

jury to all.

Instead of the conservative motto: "A fair day's yages for a fair day's work," we use inscribe on our banner the revolutionary watchword: "Abolition of the wage system."

It is the historic mission of the working-class to do away with Capitalism. The army of production must be organised, not only for the everyday struggle with capitalists, but also the everyoay struggic with capitalists, but also to carry on production when Capitalism shall have been overthrown. By organising indus-trially, we are forming the structure of the new society within the shell of the old.

The rich are always preaching economy and accusing the workers of being extravagant. And it is a fact that the workers do indulge in some luxuries that they can ill-afford. One luxury the workers should dispense with and do it without further delay is the luxury of millionaires; they cost too much. It takes too much of the wealth created by labor to make and support a millionaire. You can't afford such a luxury, Mr. Worker. Cut it out.—Ex.

SOME LIGHT ON JOE MORRIS' SCABBY

- CAREER.

By Alf. W. Wilson.

The/I.W.W. has been born into its right time here in Australia. I have had a great deal to do with Trades Unionism in my time, but never during all my varied experiences have I known craft unionism to trail as low in the mire as it is doing these enlightened days.

I have before me a leaflet which was concected by two well known Labor fakirs for the sole purpose of discrediting (if they could) men of better industrial standing than themselves. It was sent out that time the Waterside Workers of the Commonwealth were refusing to perform any overtime work beyond the limit of the precious eight hours which we hear so much about. It was the first time in waterside history that all branches of the federation could truthfully claim to be Eight Hours men.
Thanks to the advent of the LW.W.

The Union Officials referred to are "Terrible The Union Unionals referred to are "Terrible Billy". Hughes, the perfidious, rengade Labor Politician, who has allowed his ambition and avariee to run away with him in England lately; the other is Mr. Joe Morris, secretary of the Waterside Workers' Federation, who is Hughes' washpot.

Hughes' treachery to Labor, which he now so falsely represents, is too well known to the thinking workers of the Commonwealth to need much from me at present, but there is a danger of the other man parading still further as a staunch champion of working class interests, and I deem it incumbent to clip his wings before he parades his dissimulation much further.

fore he parades his dissimulation much further. Joseph Hayes Morris is the secretary of the W.W.F. He was for many years secretary of the Port Phillip Eight Hours Association; he is a delegate from that union to the Federal Council of the W.W.F. He is a delegate of the Eight Hour Anniversary Committee. He is a Municipal Councillor, elected to represent Labor interests. In addition, he is, I believe, a dignified J.P. Not being content with 'this multiplicity of offices, he has lately had himself appointed general secretary—dictator and overlord—of the Port Phillip E.H.A.

I first came in contact with this Labor Pharisee at a meeting of Wharf Laborers in the Galety Theatre some five and a half years ago. He was then being considerably heckled because he had written and informed that union that an agreement with the shipowners union that an agreement with the shipowners had been signed on their behalf by him and his political spouse, when as a matter of fact no such agreement had been entered into. I began to know more about him when I joined his precious Eight Hours show. It did not take me long to discover that eight hours was more often being honored in the breach than the observance. observance.

No sooner had I got into the ways and workings of P.P.E.H.A. than I took an active interest in a co-operative Stevedoring Company which was then in embryo. I could see nothing better for the men at the time, and put it before any other improvement of conditions that were so badly needed. Morris was my principal opponent, and did all that a man in his influential position could down defeat the his influefitial position could dosto defeat the project. To assist him, some of his henchmen, went as far as to write to the scurvy, "Age" endeavouring to attack me because of my radical opinions, but instead of hurting me he wound up by insulting those whose cause they thought he espoused. He then said that if I were not checked I would end up by ruining their splendid union, and continued further in his elodpatedness by stating that it kept the whole of the "secretary"s time occupied in colwhole of the secretary's time occupied in col-lecting the members' dues each week, so enamoured were they of their union. But with it all I was supported by those whom Morris and his minions tried to misguide. Later on, in spite of all Morris' splendid attempts, I was clevated to the president's chair, securing a two to one majority over his nominee. At the end of my term I was urged to continue in office with much greater support.

This pseudo-democrat was so radical in his wish to accept the ruling of the majority, which, I understand, is the basis of democracy these times, that he sneaked behind the back of the executive and wrote letters to ship-owners and their representatives, for which a motion of censure was tabled and only nar-rowly averted being carried.

I should have gone further towards mater-ialising this thing but for the fact that mine was a busier term of affice than that of most

Then came the historical conference, that sought to improve the hard lot of the Water side Workers, that conference, the outcome of which was to make the wages and conditions nearly uniform throughout Australia. He and I were co-delegates, and it was then that I learned how staunch a unionist he was. He and his famous "Gazette," now defunct, had called on the waterside men in Queensland to con-tinue working, when working meant scabbing on the sugar workers then on strike. For such sourry conduct Queensland delegates would not support his nomination for the newly created office, that of secretary of the federa-tion. He could only command an infinitesimal minority of the votes east, while I who was obscure and unknown was able to take a lead on him. This, perhaps, is why he goes out of his way to cafumniate me.

He blubbered like a school boy, and insulted all and sundry, so exasperated was he that he could not got the much coveted ljob. It was avarice with him, for he already held other jobs, and received perquisites for editing the "Gazette," which publication was responsible for his downfall, intriguing apart.

It is needless to enter into Hughes' trickery, which kopt his henchman in office after his ignominious defeat, and how he intrigued to placate his vote splitters.

So carnestly interested were these two Labor (officials in improving the lot of the waferside worker that they entered into collusion with others of Hughes' political lik and shelved all that the conference stood for. When shelved all that the conference stood for. When questioned about their recreancy these apostates tried fo wriggle out by answering that the Rural Workers' log-had wreeked the chances of Hughes and Co. at the Federal elections, and there was a likelihood of the waterside men prejudicing the political jobs of Holman and Co., of N.S.W. Thus were the slaves of the waterside sacrificed by Hughes, Morris, and Co.

This pretended friend of Labor came at his Queensland tricks again when the New Zealand Waterside Workers were on strike. Sydney de-clared the S. S. Dorset "black" and refused to clared the S. S. Dorset "Dlack" and refused to work that ship if brought to Sydney. She was immediately steered to Melbourne, and against my instructions as president of the union, seab-bed by Morris' permission. Worse than that. When I ordered a meeting to consider our posi-When I ordered a meeting to consider our posi-tion I found to my astonishment that men were prevented from attending the meeting for the purpose of scabbing, all other work being stopped.

When the politicians for whom we were sacrificed had secured their place and pay, the trouble with the ship owners began. Morris, who had advocated a fight when he spoke at the conference, turned invertebrate and sub-ordinated himself to the will of Hughes, and threw away 50 per cent. of the increase we demanded, while he now asks for such an increase in his own salary as will place him far ahead of a State politician. What mercenaries there are fastened on to the back of Labor!

Acting on the methods of the I.W.W., Hughes and Morris called on the men to ceuse working overtime. Then the sixty pounds a week judge of the Arbitration Court stepped in, I.W.W. and so anxious were Hughes and Morris to get them under penalty, that they ordered the men to return to former conditions right away. But some of the branches were not as clodented as Hughes and Morris expected. It was then that I came in contact with the treachery of these two perfidious gentlemen. I stood on the side of the men against the court, but Hughes, who had so much to gain (monetary of course), urged me to get the stevedores back to work as soon as possible. I defied him and his bum council, and the men stood firm until all the other branches had been tricked back on overtime again. It was while the men'were still treating the court with the confempt that such an industrial tribunal deserves, that Hughes and Morits signed their names to the scurrilous decument that I now have before me.

They tried to rig a ballot behind my back
But I was awake to their peradity. The ballot proving abortive, they tried further to trick the men back on overtime, so that they should be placed under penalty, and intimidated by their employers day by day. This is what they wrote:

"Those reckless extremists in our "Those reckless extremists in our unions who counsel the disregard of the majority rad of the policy approved by the majority are a danger to unionism and to Labor a hundred times greater than all the blacklegs and capitalists in the world.

"The council calls upon the members of the stevederes branch to fall into line to be true unionists (of the Hugh 5 Morris (ype) and net to follow those wreckers of unionism, who, by to follow those wreekers of unionian, wan and defying discipline and united action, play into the hands of capitalists."

Now, as far as the first is concerned, unajorities don't count for much where Hughes and Morris are at the head, vide the last conference in Brisbane, where it was decided that there was only to be one branch of the federathere was only to be one ordered the reduction in each port. Morris knows that his job with its ever increasing salary and that of his protege are gone as soon as the two branches in Melbourne become one. So it is ever with those who aspire to become parasites. They those who aspire to become parasites. They will stoop to any and every sinister means to put back progress.

Some time ago, when I moved for closer unity, Morris pretended to be its supporter, but at the same time worked clandestinely to defeat at the same time worked clandestinely to defeat the project. But in spite-of him and his under-handedness I was successful in going so near to the closer unity that it only lacked twenty votes to make a two thirds majority, while the Wharf Labourers had nearly a thousand to spare. How about that for counselling the will of the majority. In spite of that Morris still flouts the decision of the conference. These two Labour fakirs will do well to re-member that in future there will be a good

These two Labour fakirs will do well to re-member that in future there will be a good many more extremists, who will wholly disregard the decisions of Hughes, Morris, and Co.

For the second time they will find amongst the rank and file staunch men who are alive to the rank and the student men who are the conduct of disciplinarians of the Highes-Morris type, who play into the hands of capitalists when they send men scabbing, or congratulating scabs who will not down tools to fight for their follow unjoinists when they are required to make common cause.

There is a place called Port Piric.

It was Joe Morris who tried to undermine my cord when I sat on the local Board of Referrecord when I sat on the local Board of Reference. There, against a stiff proposition, I was successful in getting six men where he had failed for nearly four years, thus improving working conditions a whole 50 per cent. There was some ambiguity about the business, but I took that course of direct action that caused the employers to summon some men to court for breach of the award. And for a wonder we got all we were after in that regard. Never growing weary of the court, this pretended friend of the waterside men goes there for another two months and finishes by leaving the number of men to be sent into a ship's hold a score per cent. worse than I was able to leave it in the first place, and this, with the zesistance of a learned barrister, and at the eave it in the hist place, and that, with the essistance of a learned barrister, and at the cost of some thousands of pounds.

It is drawing near to the time when the Waterside Workers will wake up to the perfuly of the two men who have signed the aforementioned document. True unionism has como-Australia, but it has not been discovered by · Hughes and Morris.

Passing of Parliament.

HI.

"Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, these things do really govern politics and save or destroy States.

"They save or destroy them by a silent inexorable fatality, whilst the politicians are exorable fatality, whilst the politicians are making believe plausibly and noisily." —Matthew Arnold.

Just as when the eminent man of letters wrote the above sweeping indictment again a politics and politicians, so even at the present time does the "silent inexerable fatality" of all the things enumerated in the quotation constitute the social, moral, mental, and economic progress of the world-which would develop more rapidly were it not for the ob-struction of the same valuable and garrulous politicians.

Surely if there were in history some instance of the great cult of the plausible and make-believe noisy, having sayed the people in the mass from someone of the destroying in the mass from someone of the destroying influences referred to by Arnold, it could be adduced as a part defence of the cause of those who still clausor for politics and parliament as the one way out from the bondage prisons of darkest capitalism.

All the forces referred to in the above quotation, in toto, make up what is expressed throughout this article as "the moral senti-ment of the community," which forms the basis and mainspring of all action. Direct action has been found in human experience as the best form of all action because it results in the greatest measure of success.

It was the direct action of "the brave lads of Lexington" who fired the shot heard around the world, and it was the direct action em-bodied in Paine's "Common Sense" that acted like a stimulant or anodyne on the drooping spirit and the flagging courage of the revolution armies, and that turned the tide of war's fortune in their favour, till direct action stood behind the low redoubt at Bunker's Hill. It bening the low redount at sunkers Hill. It was direct action that metted the statue of King George III. into bullets, and fired them at his troops. It was direct action in every instance that led to the culminating glory of the Colonists casting off the rule of England and building their temple of Freedom on the Declaration of Independence, and the great mistake, was then made of centructive the fewer mistake was then made of entrusting the new born young Republic to the foster nursing a and discarding the wiser faith in direct action spontaneously flowing out of the moral senti-ment of the community. This mistake was recognised by Thomas Jefferson, who drafted the Declaration, when in his later years of experience he wrote: "I am convinced that those primitive societies, such as our Red Skins, which live without government, enjoy in their general mass an infinitely greater degree of happiness than those who live under European governments. those who live under European governments. Among the former public opinion is in the place of law, and restrains as powerfully as laws ever did anywhere. Whereas, among the latter, under the pretence of government they have divided their nations into two classes—wolves and shepe. I do not exaggerate: this is a true picture of Europe to-day."

Thus Jefferson; and in his America to day, after the long efforts of its citizens, inspired by such men as Bryant, Hawthorne, Emerson. Thoreau, Henry Clay, Partick Henry, Whit-tier, Whitman, Lowell, Holmes, Wendell Phillips, and many thousands of other Truth, Justice, and Liberty loving spirits, there are Justice, and Liberty loving spirits, there are wolves, more flerce and voracious than the feudal hordes of the same genus, ravening and devouring the sheep—on a scale of proportion beside which the Europe of Jefferson's day shrinks to insignificance. The polison's any sarrinas to insignificance. The political While Hope of the Nations—the young Republic—that rose like a star out of the crimson seas of Revolutionary Wars, is to-day the world's greatest citadel of capitalistic greed, fraud, and corruption.

Well might Emerson write, "The conditions of the conditions of the of the feudal age survive and exist in the steep inequality of our times." And now for the alleged failure of the late premature insurrection in Ireland. Who can say what the effects of any act of resistance or aggression of any section of radical malcontents will be? All we can do is to judge by a parity of effects of like causes in the ast, that is, reasoning by analogy.

Ireland got very little redress of her wrongs during her six to seven centuries of despotte government by England—until she turned her energies into the channel, direct action. All the political efforts of her brightest and most ardent sons were painfully slow and met with but little success. But when cattle were maimed and killed, haystacks and farm buildings burnt, bailiffs, proctors, evictors, rent-rackers, and landlords were maltreated, and in many cases shot, then the rulers were roused to enquire what it all meant. What was the cause of it?

was the cause of it?

Then Gladstone got busy with tongue and pen, wrote to "The Times" and "Nineteenth Century" such diatribes against British government atroctities on the unhappy Irish people as stirred even the sluggish blood of playsible and noisy politicians, raised up the sible and noisy politicians, raised up the "un-crowned King of Ireland"—Charles Stuart Parnell—and then under the political reid-wifery of Gladstone, the Westminster meun-tain labored and brought forth a Home Ruie mouse, which after being itcked into better shape, is again being held out to Ireland by the present utility man of British politics, Mr. the present utility man of British politics, Mr. Lloyd George—who has been hurried up by the Insurrection, on which your "I.S." scribe stamps the name of Fallure. Any one who denies this as a frue interpretation of the later facts of Irish history has but little chance of successfully indicating the probable results of this last (admittedly premature) attempt to gain redress for the long arrear of English injustice to Ireland.

But apart altogether from this latest phase of Ireland's contest for liberty, the direct ac-tion of the I.W.W. Organisation is of the order that is guided by intelligence, and is not der that is guided by intelligence, and is not essentially on the plane of physical force, though there are times when government tyranny reaches its limitations in force that reprisals in like kind have been justified by the oppressed. History is thickly studded with such cases.

But assuming that our A.S.P. fellow-workers were to succeed during the currency of the 20th century, in their romantic idea of capturing the Federal political machine at the top of Bourke Street, they, like every party which has preceded them, would soon find that the machine had captured them, and would further realise that all their good and virtu-ous intentions (with which let them be creditous intentions (with which let them be credit-ed), like those of all their predecessors, would be frustrated and set at nought like those of Watson, Fisher, Hughes, Pearce, and that lik. If they, superior to all other men, overcome the machine by reconstructing it to their, heart's desire, and passed laws to abolish Capitalism, private ownership, and wage slavery, they would still have to organise with the I.W.W. (or like them) to take possession on the economic field. Why? Because the wrong of humanity is not a political one, it is not in the domain of lawyers; it is an eco-nomic wrong, it lies in the field of production, and the fight must be waged in the industrial arena. With David Kirkwood, the LW.W.'s says "It is not a job for a lawyer: it is a job for workers." We Industrial Workers of the World tell

We industrial Workers of the World tell you Socialist would-be politicians to remain workers, because as a worker (if a true man) each of you is a power, a fighting factor; you go into politics, and the machine gains a victim to corruption, a traitor to labor, and the great human cause for Right, Truth, and Working Class Liberty, loses a Man.

Forward the I.W.W. Brigade. Down with Capitalism, and Politicians, and up with the "One Big Union."

Every sub. gathered in for "Direct Action" is a brick in the structure of Industrial De-mocracy.

The founder of Christianity began his teaching in labour unions of his time, and was slain as a revolutionist by the masterclass of the Roman Empire.

Until the time of Constantine, followers of the new movement suffered great persecu-tion (from the same source).

Constantine (like the craft unionist's boss) was a "shrewd" man. He saw that it was better to pervert the new movement than to persecuté it.

Accordingly he adopted Christianity and made it the State religion.

Christianity is now an integral part of the capitalist system. It is impossible to separate these two "C's." They function together. They are Siamese twins upon the worker's back. Like Jack and Jill, when Capi talism falls, Christianity lumbles atter. Difficulty exists at this late period in ascertaining what really were the teachings of the founder of Christianity. They have been so perverted by professors, theologians, and divines that a thankless task remains to him mes that a thankless task remains to make who tries to separate wheat from chaff. Sonic precepts seem to be directly inimical to workers' interests; others can easily be made so; and the rest are obviously impracticable (at any rate, under capitalism).

The chief function of the church to-day

The chief function of the church to-day is to act as a buffer to the capitalist system, Bishops and clergy earn their yalt (from the capitalists' point of view) by instilling ideas of "discipline" and "obedience" into the pllable mind of youth; by diverting tollers from a study of economic conditions; and by giving moral support and ecclesiastical sanction to the exploitation of labour.

sanction to the exploitation of labour. In the modern interpretation of Christianity, "sin" becomes rebellion against the boss; the "Lord" to be feared and obeyed is the landlord and capitalist; "heaven" is the flictionary elysium of the sweated slave. "Bleried are the meek"; "blessed are the poor"; "servants, obey your matters and be content with your wages"; "thy will" (the capitalist.) "be done"; "give us" (after we have produced it) "our duity bread"; all designed to make servite slaves of working men. servile slaves of working men.

The same kind of intellectual intimedation and coercion runs through all the creeds, dogmas, doctrines, rituals, expositions, cate-chisms, and hymns of the church. This is why working men (ever on the alert to be exploited) send their children to

"Sunday school."

This is also why bishops and clerky of all denominations are such warm friends and admirers of the L.W., LW.M., is said to stand for "I Won't Work.". Who so cordially en-dorse this sentiment as the bishops and clergy aforesaid?

The moral worth of Christianity is best reyealed, however in its attitude to war. general impression seems to be abroad amount the common people that the founder of Chris-tianity emphatically ofposed war. No one would surmise this from the attitude of the would surmise this from the attitude of the church. Bistops (for a monetary consideration) bless cannons, consecrate cruisers, are vehement for victories, and thost fluently in the "fountain filled with blood." The founder of Christianity becomes the god of battles.

Meanwhile, the economic awakening of the working class proceeds quietly apace. Rises in cost of living are, after all (except to a bishop) of more consideration than crown of glory. Slaves are discovering that it is of glory. Slaves are discovering that it is possible to be damned now without waiting for the hereafter. Lazarus still sits at the rich man's gate. Poverty still stalks the slum. After 1900 years of Christianity, girls still sell their bodies for bread. Economic necessity teaches more truly than the church. Parsons are parasites. Bishops are bouncers, . "Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey, Where wealth accumulates and men

decay." In spite of the church, slaves are crying: "Whereas I was blind, now I see!" They are discovering that they must work our their own economic salvation, heedless of the When meal tickets are being given church. church. When meal tickets are being given out, the parson always ranges up with the capitalist—the "master of bread." The idea of industrial solidarity is becoming a living force in working class consciousness. When the parson takes up a collection he can have unionism (for one thing) us a freewill offerently with the part of the carter was a collection of the carter wa fering. We will not need it much longer. It is unionism and the One Big Union. The I.W.N. leads the way. The church is an "also ran."

The Church and the Slave. The War's Illegitimates Melbourne Notes. The I.W.W Press

in the latest issue of that rag of patriotic "dribble"—"The Mirror"—there appears some lines of denunciation directed against the LW.W. The writer—wheever that attivistic "recolotic way be included off with the follows. Troglodyte may be-leads off with the following: -- "We congratulate Senator Pearce Minister of Defence, and Acting Prime Minister, in taking action in connection with the strikes at the Commonwealth Clothing Factory in Melbourne, where members of the I.W.W. have evidently been given considerable scope."

This is followed by a host of other denun-ciatory epithets such as "Unpatriotic organi-sation," "No/hationality," "Enemy origin," "I Won't Work Brigade." It is not known whe-ther or upt 'there are members of the LW.W. working at the Federal Clothing Factory, or what particular part of the "mud ball" some of its slaves may have come from. But what is known is that the "Mirror," under the cloak of indignant (pocket-book) patriotism, desires to misinform a credulous public about an organisation which up to date has proved itself the most virile working class union in Austra-Possibly, there may be a chance of "The Mirror" being honest in its criticism; if so, then it would be well if this "bovine simple-ton" took notice of a motion that was passed by the slaves of the aforementioned clothing regions of the another mode by Senator Pearce that there was "German influence" at work. However, as both Pearce and the Sydney rag implied. the "go slow" policy had been adopted by the factory workers; it only hows that even Government slaves are awakening to the benefits of "sabotage" in forcing the boss to hand over a little more or the product 10 the worker. Going slow on the job passact to the worker. Coing slow on the job is anathenta in all capitalistic circles, and our paternal 'Labor' Government and subsidised press is no exception, consequently when a howl of rage is heard about unpatriotic workers restricting the output, it is a good sign that the self-same workers are becoming intelligent.

"The Mirror" has been particularly malig-nant in its attack on the I.W.W., and its latest excursion into the gutter proves conclusively that the bee is still in the bonnet.

Illegitimate births have been very prevalent since the beginning of the war; the genus home, however, is not the only culprit, as the home, nowever, is not the only culprit, as the number of new newspapers prove only too well. Indeed, in the realm of pression, "like-stimmer," has 'hown a startling increase, and it, is, noted that the new offspring is tained with degeneracy, giving off extremely unpleasant smells that are generally common to pestiferous collections of offal. The latest addition to the absence of offenies of offenies of offenies. tion to the already large number of offspring is "The Mirror"—which in every issue gives fresh signs of premature idiocy.

Neither the Acting Prime Minister nor the plute press can deal with the I.W.W., nor stop its propaganda of Industrial Unionism and Sabotage. These essentially working-class weapons can not be met by governments once the slaves get wise to them.

If the ideas of the LW.W. have penetrated the Commonwealth Clothing Factory one can rest assured that they will prove efficacious in making the "boss" remember his slaves, even if that boss be the Government. Exploitation is just as real in State workshops as in any is just as real in state worksnops as in any other capitalistically owned industry, possibly more, possibly less. Anyhow, one thing is sure, the "go slow" policy will be used without any scruples as to the identity of the particular owner of the factory. So long as papers of "The Mirror" variety go into hysterics over the ubiquitous LW.W., the organisation can real seatered that it is bitting in the right. can rest assured that it is hitting in the right spot—the pocket-book. Charges of "enemy origin" and such-like only go to prove what hatred the plutish press has towards organisations of an international character, because when the working class are organised internationally, wars and all their illegitimate off-springs and cancerous growths such as "The Mirror," will be impossible
