

We gotta do something about these CTA service cuts. 20% service cuts, 1000 people losing their jobs, fare hikes for students and disabled riders. It's fucking insane...

Yeah, and this is all at the same time that they're building a new "L" line to connect the suburbs, they just built a new headquarters for themselves on lake street, the CTA board just increased their own pensions, they're constantly installing new security cameras and GPS clever boxes to spy on us, they're having new express trains to the airport so the yuppie tourists don't have to see us. It's bullshit.

Man, I don't want to see those fucking yuppies either.

So here's what we gotta do. Starting December 15th we go on fare strike. Riders don't pay for the bus or the "L" and CTA workers don't collect. We keep riding and driving as usual, but for free. That will put real pressure on those CTA bureaucrats. Half their budget comes from fares, and if enough of us do this, they'll change their spending priorities real quick!

Great! But for this to work we have to spread the word. We have to tell everyone we know. Drivers and riders have to work together.

Heh. This will hit those bastardss where it hurts. Let's do it!

FARE STRIKE
